Columbus and His Day
Japan Knows When
Gandhi's Kind Heart
Ice. Water. Steam

By Arthur Brisbane

COLUMBUS was honored yesterday in memory of that day in 1492, when he sailed the ocean blue, financed by their Catholic majesties Ferdinand and Isabella.

He wasn't looking for any "America," but expected to find his way to Cipangu, or Japan, and open intercourse with the Grand Khan of Cathay to whom he had a letter from the Spanish king. No one wanted to sail on Columbus' ships at first, not even hardened criminals, to whom pardon was offered.

They believed they would sail a certain distance and then fall "over the edge of the ocean."

The fate of Columbus reminds you that the fate of the great are uncertain.

Received with glory on his return, Columbus "rode at the king's bridle, displayed his parrots, gold, strange weapons, and Indians that he had brought to be baptized." He saw both sides of the medal of life.

From one of his trips his two brothers and himself were brought back prisoners and manacled. He kept the irons that he had worn as long as he lived to remind him "as memorials of the reward for his services."

Columbus, probably born in Genoa, which makes him an Italian, is said to have been of Jewish descent. His ancestors were driven out of Portugal for religious reasons and compelled to adopt Christianity for safety's sake.

Whatever he was or did, he would be surprised to see now the America that he discovered.

Columbus Day was made interesting by a threat from Chiang Kai-Shek that he would declare war on Japan if the League of Nations didn't do something. The League of Nations will talk, but probably not do anything, whereas Japan will do something, and has done things already.

China's danger is bringing together the North and the South. Both may be united against Japan.

Gandhi, who has a kind heart, says he is enduring the round table slowness because "I cannot hold a blackjack over England's head now while she is tottering and gouge India's freedom out of her."

England will not like that word "tottering." Not called for yet.

But she should appreciate Gandhi's forebearance. To have serious trouble in India would be painful.

Not all Asiatics are like Gandhi. The Japanese for instance believe that the time to go after a thing is when you can get it. Japan is holding a blackjack over China's head, while China is "tottering." Similarly the Irish got their Free State status from the British when the war made refusal difficult.

Marconi, unusual dreamer who makes reality of dreams, expects "momentous discoveries," including a solution of the great problem, "What is the world made of?"

There is, Marconi believes, only one kind of matter that takes different forms. The dream of the alchemist could have been made reality, if they knew how to go about it.

Some great philosophers worry because matter, the earth, its mountains, our own bodies, are only a collection of atoms, made up of electrons, particles of electricity, nothing real.

Bishop Berkeley, 200 years ago, declared that the world had no existence, except in men's minds.

But we worry needlessly. Ice is solid, you can skate on it at a certain temperature. When it is warmer and liquid you can swim in it and sail over it. Still warmer, it becomes vapor, in which you can take a steam bath, and still hotter it will scald you to death.

All this does not mean that ice, water or steam is useless, or unreal, or that we need worry about transformations in matter.

The earth is solid enough now, bridges carry loads, cranes lift their burdens, man rules his grain of sand in the universe. Time enough to worry millions of years hence, and by that time we shall probably be elsewhere in the universe.

George Bernard Shaw, unlike good wine, does not age well. In a jeering mood, addressing Americans, he predicts we shall one day erect a statue to Lenin, and adds: "Your President, who became famous by feeding devastated Europe in war, cannot feed his own people in time of peace."

Even Mr. Shaw should know that our President is not sup-

Fire started in wharf at the foot of Derby st., Sunday and rekindled after a night-long battle to control the blaze. The Boston fireboat was summoned when the flames crept toward a 5000-gallon gasoline tank on an adjacent wharf.

A day crew of firemen was driven to Salem to relieve the night crew on the MacDonald several hours before the fire was under control. Loss was estimated at $150,000.

The four Powers children, asleep on the second floor, were awakened by 12-year-old James, eldest child, and they made their escapes by crawling through the windows of the bedrooms, over a veranda roof to the room occupied by their parents.

SUNDAY FOOTBALL STIRS SALEM

PRACTICE IN MORNING OPPOSED

Action of Coach Broderick of High School Condemned by Mayor Bates

Salem, Oct. 13—Another tempest in eastern Massachusetts high school athletics is brewing here today because Coach Arthur R. W. "Bill" Broderick ordered Salem High football squad out for practice last Sunday morning.

Protested formally by the Rev. Cornelius P. Trowbridge, rector of Grace Episcopal Church, and informally by many other citizens, Coach Broderick's action today led Mayor George J. Bates, as chairman of the school committee, to threaten abolishment of the famous team which in the last few years has gained national prominence in scholastic circles.

DENOUNCED BY MAYOR

"Sunday morning practice certainly will not be tolerated in this city," the mayor said.

"We will investigate this thoroughly at the next meeting of the School Committee. It is a matter for decisive action.

"When a high school football coach has to call his team out for practice on Sunday in order to win on Monday it is about time to do away with the team."

The mayor's indigation was aroused by a letter from the Rev. Mr. Trowbridge, a copy of which also was sent Principal Maurice B. Smith of the high school, in which the clergyman, explaining he is in favor of Sunday afternoon sports and did not protest "from a Puritanical point of view," said:

LETTER FROM TROWBRIDGE

"The church has one morning a week in which to work for the moral and spiritual upbuilding of our young people. To infringe upon this time, as was done by the holding of football practice last Sunday morning, constitutes a direct attack on the forces which are working for righteousness in this community.

Principal Smith said today he knew nothing of the matter, as control of high school athletics is entirely in the hands of the School Committee.

Broderick, who is physical instructor at the school as well as football coach was busy with classes today and could not be reached for comment.

Under his tutelage Salem has had a succession of scholastic champion football teams that have played Tallahassee, Fla., to Portland, Ore., East Cleveland, O., and many other intersectional contests. Salem High School has lost only 12 games out of the last 104 played.

Beaten Up by Police, Say Students

Declaring they were beaten up at the Back Bay police station, after their arrest at the Tent ballroom on Huntington ave., last night, two wealthy Harvard Business School students today threatened action against the police.

The youths are Edward P. Sloan of Hartford, Ct., and Brainerd Taylor of Washington, D. C. Both live in Mellon hall at the business school.

"They held my hands, punched me in the face and eyes and slugged me from behind," said Sloan, telling of his alleged rough handling by the police, before going into court.

"I hadn't been drinking a drop. Taylor had a few drinks, and when we appeared at the ballroom the cop told us we couldn't go in, for no reason at all."

Arraigned in Roxbury court, on charges of assault and battery on a policeman and wanton injury to his clothing, they were held in $2,000 bail each for a hearing Oct. 21.

They were bruised and bandaged as a result of their battle at the ballroom with Patrolman James Crowley who attempted to evict them. Furniture was wrecked as the battle was waged. Mrs. Agnes Callahan, policewoman, also took a hand in the fracas. Seven officers finally arrived on the scene to subdue the youths.

Taylor is the son of Col. Brainerd Taylor, U. S. A., now on duty in the adjutant general's department at Washington. Sloan is a graduate of Yale.

With a strengthened police guard on duty in Everett and extra officers scheduled for Cambridge, primary elections got under way today in a number of Massachusetts cities, with generally heavy voting.

Inspired by sparkling fall weather and numerous local contests, early morning voters turned out in numbers in Everett, Lynn and Lowell.

Polls in Worcester opened at 11 o'clock, to be followed an hour later by those in Cambridge, Somerville and Waltham.

In Everett where a record vote was expected, extra officers were on duty as a result of threats received by Mayor C. O'Neill, who seeks to succeed himself, and Atty. Morris T. Silverstein, candidate for alderman.

HEAVY EARLY VOTE

Mayor O'Neill, who, if re-elected, will probably be a candidate for lieutenant governor on the Democratic ticket at the next State election, was opposed by eight candidates. They included two former mayors, James A. Roche and Dr. Lester F. Chisholm, with Rep. James J. Cahill, James J. Irwin, Chester Curnane, George F. Nichols, Chester Brown and Harrison J. Woodruff.

In Lynn, with five candidates for mayor headed by the present incumbent, J. Fred Manning, polls opened at 6 a. m., with the heaviest voting expected in the afternoon.

Mayor Manning was opposed by Frank J. Harney, Earl C. Jacobs.

DEFIANCE HURLED AT LEAGUE BY JAPS

Tokio Flatly Refuses to Withdraw From Manchuria Until China Gives In

Geneva, Oct. 13 (INS)—Japan threw down the gauntlet to the League of Nations this afternoon.

Through her official spokesman, [illegible] Yoshizawa, she flatly informed the League Council that she will not withdraw from recently occupied zones in Manchuria until the security of her nationals is guaranteed to her satisfaction. At the same time she disclaimed ambitions of territorial aggrandizement in Manchuria.

The council adjourned at 5 o'clock tonight without indicating its probable course of action.

Yoshizawa's defiance was uttered during the extraordinary session called to consider the grave situation while the threat of President Chiang Kai-Shek of China to resort to war if necessary hung over the meeting like a cloud.

REVEALS NEW BOMBING

Dr. Alfred Sze, Chinese delegate to tthe council, had presented his side of the controversy to the League this morning. The afternoon session had been reserved for the Japanese argument.

In the midst of this, Dr. Sze interrupted to read a telegram from Nanking reporting new Japanese military activities in Manchuria.

"While we are sitting here, gentlemen, waiting for the League to act," Dr. Sze said excitedly, "Japanese airplanes dropped five bombs and machine-gunned two open cities 150 miles west of Mukden at 9:40 a. m. this morning and again this afternoon."

Charges were hurled back and forth. Yoshizawa charged that China had instituted a concerted campaign of sedition and propaganda against Japan.

Sze charged that Japan's invasion of Manchuria was the result of a carefuly prepared military program, launched at a time when the United States and other nations were occupied with other affairs.

WARNS OF LEAGUE CRISIS

tion. Failure of the League to solve the crisis before war developed, he said, would "spell the doom of disarmament."

"National Japanese sentiment," Yoshizawa said, "is so closely linked with Manchuria that any trouble is virtually an attack upon our own daily life. In the last few years, directors of Chinese politics have been fomenting anti-Japanese feeling.

"As a result, the lives of Japanese residents of Manchuria have become unbearable. Japanese have even been imprisoned and their lives imperilled.

"Koreans have been massacred. The assassination of Capt. Nakamura is an example of China's insolent attitude."

Japs Bomb Railway Line and Troop Trains

Mukden, Oct. 13 (INS)—An encircling movement of Japanese troops, officially described by Japanese authorities as an "anti-bandit" crusade, was launched today with Chinchow, headquarters of Gov. Chang Hsueh-Liang, as its objective.

A dozen Japanese military airplanes today swept within 100 miles of Peiping, dropping bombs on the Tanhushan railway during the entraining of the South Chinese seventh division.

Despite the activity of the Japanese it was stated three troop trains from Tannushan had departed and a fourth was to leave before nightfall. It was understood they were to proceed to the Manchurian border.

In Nanking, seat of the Chinese Nationalist Government, it was said President Chiang Kai-Shek had issued orders to the Kinhan railway to prepare 100 trains to transport an army northward.

In Hankow it was announced that wholesale evacuation of Japanese from Szechwan Province continued today owing to hostile demonstrations.

The city of Canton was placed under martial law today after issuance of a police proclamation declaring that Communists were taking advantage of anti-Japanese feeling to make trouble.

Hoover Presents "Brighter Reports" on Chinese Situation

Washington, Oct. 13 (AP)—Brighter reports on the Manchurian situation were submitted to the Cabinet today by President Hoover.

JAPAN-RUSSIAN PACT HINTED

(Copyright, 1931, by International News Service.)

Berlin, Oct. 13—A Soviet army of 100,000 men is massed along the Manchurian frontier, well-equipped for winter warfare, and ready to strike at any moment.

But in contrast to a belief held in other quarters, diplomats here say Russia will not strike at Japan if the latter is involved in war with China over Manchuria. This, too, is the opinion expressed by Communists here who are in contact with Moscow.

There is suspicion even of a Russo-Japanese accord because of the respect paid Russia's "sphere of influence" by the Japanese in their recent occupation of Manchurian territory, although the Soviet ostensibly is supporting the Chinese.

Charlestown Youth Gets Legion Medal

Francis O'Brien, Charlestown high school senior, today was proudly sporting a medal presented him last night by Bunker Hill Post 26, A. L., as an outstanding performer for two years in the C. M. T. C. course at Camp Devens.

Listen to This Tale of 'Good Old Days' and Cheer Up

Chicago, Oct. 13 (AP)—People who talk hard times should be ashamed of themselves, in the opinion of Rosell M. Clark and his wife, Alzina, who have been married for 65 years.

Reminiscing as they prepared to celebrate their wedding anniversary Thursday the couple recalled these facts:

When they were married after the Civil War and followed the old Santa Fe trail to McPherson, Kan., they didn't find any kitchenette apartment awaiting them:

While not engaged in fighting Indians they built a house out of dirt, supported by tree branches.

The grain they planted was blown away by a Kansas gale.

When a crop was ready for harvest grasshoppers or prairie fires destroyed it.

SHIP MYSTERY IS PROBED

Conflicting reports of the accident to a Boston four-masted schooner, rescued by the coast guard cutter Mojave off Cape Cod after an all-night battle with the waves, were being probed by coast guard officials today.

The Mojave, it was said, reported early today a line had been put aboard the schooner, the Harry G. Deering, and she was being towed here. The Mojave reported they would reach here this afternoon.

One report said the schooner had been damaged in a heavy blow in which her sails and masts had been torn away and severe damage done to her bow and headgear.

The other report claimed the schooner had been in collision with an as yet unidentified vessel. Coast guards say they were advised by wireless of the schooner's predicament by an unidentified ship.

Tossed by huge swells, the Mojave battled for hours before they were able to get a line aboard the distressed schooner. Giant waves had battered the vessel, and it was leaking badly.

DOCTORS VIEW WORK OF NEW ANESTHETIC

Woman Operated on in Dangerous Case Before Physicians Attending Clinic

(Copyright, 1931, by International News Service, Inc.)

New York, Oct. 13 (INS)—In one of the more than 100 hospitals conducting clinics for physicians visiting this city this week, a young woman of 24, suffering from exophthalmic goitre, was operated upon today.

The anesthetic used in this dangerous case was avertin, the trade name in this country of ordinary alcohol first altered by chemical processes three years ago by a German physician.

Since then it has been used in operations on some 300,000 persons in Germany, and in recent months, on about 175,000 surgical patients in this country and Canada.

FEELS NO PAIN

This anesthetic had been administered to the young woman today 15 minutes before she was wheeled into the surgical amphitheater of a certain hospital. She did not know it had been administered to her in her room.

She came into the amphitheater apparently in a heavy natural sleep. She did not breathe heavily or bubble from the mouth.

A cone was placed over the sleeping face and three drams of ether a small amount, was administered to bring about this complete anesthesia.

For 43 minutes the surgeon of international repute who performed the operation expounded his methods and deftly did his work.

Not once was a pain response noted in the patient. Two and one-half hours later the patient was due to awaken. There will be no nauses. There will only be the actual shock of the operation.

The patient will not remember anything in connection with the operation or the administration of the anesthesia.

The new chemical produces complete amnesia, forgetfulness, from about two minutes before the anesthetic is administered to a few minutes after awakening. Only hyoscine (twilight sleep) produces similar results.

All the business of watching doctors place the cone over the face and memories of the operating room equipment and occupants is avoided.

During the operation today there was no faint symptom of strangulation, although the anesthesia was complete.

The new product is ordinary grain alcohol with three hydrogen atoms removed from its chemical chain and three atoms of bromine, an element, added.

BANK BANDITS SHOOT UP TOWN

Lizton, Ind., Oct. 13 (AP)—Two automobile loads of bandits early today isolated this town from communication, wrecked the State Bank building with a dozen blasts of nitroglycerine, shot up the town and escaped with more than $2000 in currency and negotiable securities.

Scores of shells from shotguns, revolvers and other firearms were found scattered through the streets in the business section.

Marion Bailey, 72, president of the bank, who lives across the street from the institution and who was awakened by the explosions, engaged in a gun fight with a bandit stationed in front of the bank.

The latter, crouched behind a barricade of benches, emptied several revolvers at the Bailey home.

One of the bullets barely missed James Young, brother-in-law of Bailey, who was sleeping in an upstairs room.

The robbers timed the attack with the passage of a freight train through here, starting with a few loud toned blasts.

the fourth floor corridor and left the building. They said they thought the meeting was open to the public.

Police were dispatched to the State House earlier when reports from Lawrence that radicals were on their way to stage a demonstration.

Most of this force was being held in reserve inside the building when the radicals appeared, led by James P. Reed president of the so-called National Textile Workers Union, a Communist organization.

Placards were displayed bearing the phrases:

"No wage cut, no arbitration."
"Release all strike prisoners."
"Free speech for Lawrence strikers."

Capt. John J. McGrath spoke briefly with Reed and then called out his reserves to disperse the crowd. The radical group was but little stronger than the police in numbers. A crowd of 200 or 300 spectators watched the action, which was quickly over.

Immigration Inspector Chase, who was on the scene, said that the radicals had been effectually silenced in the Lawrence strike situation.

TO APPEAR BEFORE BOARD

Sixty delegates from all the Lawrence mills appeared before the State Board of Arbitration and Conciliation. They were led by officials of the United Textile Workers' Union, which is affiliated with the A. F. of L.

The meeting was private, but it was learned that Francis J. Gorman, first vice-president of the union, produced figures for the American Woolen Company and the Pacific Mills for 1929 and 1930, purporting to show that but for heavy reductions in inventory values, there would have been no losses. Prices, he said, had touched rock bottom and were now on the upgrade.

During the entire session, state police stood guard at strategic points in the building and at the entrance to the Governor's suite of offices.

The ten per cent wage cut went into effect today at Lawrence, with few operatives reporting for work, and the picket lines stronger than at any time since the strike started.

LESS THAN $20 A WEEK

In support of their arguments against this reduction, the workers' delegates brought to Boston their pay envelopes. They claim the weekly average pay is less than $20.

Chairman Edward Fisher of Lowell presided. The other board members are Herbert P. Wasgatt of Waban, and Samuel Ross of New Bedford.

"This is a big problem and the board feels it is better to sit down and talk things over with the workers' delegates in private," said Chairman Fisher. "It will be glad to issue a statement at the conclusion of the meetings."

PLAN PUT UP TO ELY

During a recess in the State board meeting, the strikers' delegates all called on Gov. Ely and told him they were willing to submit to a decision on the wage cut by a special board of arbitration empowered to make a decision binding on both employers and employes.

Mrs. Morrow's Boom for Senate Post Grows

Englewood, N. J., Oct. 13—Continued pleas that Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow fill the vacancy in the United States Senate created by the death of her husband, have increased the probability of her appointment to that office.

Latest reports indicate that Governor Morgan F. Larsen, of New Jersey, is strongly in favor of her appointment and political followers of the late Senator Morrow feel confident it will materialize.

Brand Whitlock Ill With Pleurisy in Brussels

Brussels, Oct. 13—Brand Whitlock, former United States ambassador to Belgium, has been seriously ill here with pleurisy for the past three weeks.

Brand Whitlock

News of his illness came to light only today through Mrs. Whitlock, who announced her husband had gone through a trying period before passing the danger line.

She announced that he is slowly recovering and is able to sit up occasionally. It will be several weeks, however, before his condition is improved enough to enable his intended trip to the Riviera.

Noted Scientists Tackle Electron on Blackboard

Rome, Oct. 13—A group of 30 of the world's most noted scientists, including Madame Marie Curie and six other Nobel prize winners, went back to the blackboard and chalk of their schooldays yesterday in an attempt to bring a solution of the mystery of the electron a step nearer.

Madame Curie

One after another, the world-famous professors went to the blackboard and sketched their theories in algebraic expressions, elucidating electronic movements.

English and German scientists occupied the first session, yesterday, of the meetings, which will last a week.

Mr. Shaw, rejoicing in what he calls Russia's prosperity, discovers that "God is well pleased with Russia, while His wrath is heavy on us."

Russia has done wonders thus far with her plan, by working hard, talking little, unlike Shaw. But her people still live on black bread and bean soup, while revolutionary enthusiasm carries them along.

All nations hope, selfishly, that Russia will succeed in her effort to become a great industrial nation. Anarchy among 150,000,000, that would follow failure of the Russian plan, would be sad for all civilization.

Bis dat qui cito dat might be taken for a motto by the Seattle Chamber of Commerce. "Who gives quickly gives twice," for, in addition to giving, he sets a good example to other givers. Seattle subscribed its community fund by $16,000, one full day ahead of its schedule, and was first among United States cities of the first class to raise its full fund.

Dr. J. M. Powis Smith and Dr. Edgar Goodspeed of the University of Chicago are re-writing the Bible into an American version. The Lord's Prayer will start:

"Our Father in Heaven. Your name be revered. Your kingdom come. Your will be done on earth as it is done in Heaven. Give us today bread for today, etc., etc."

This does not seem an improvement, it reminds you of the good clergyman who began his prayer familiarly:

"O Lord, as Thou has doubtless seen in the morning's papers."

"MUSTN'T DO," SAYS AIMEE

EDISON STILL FAILS SLOWLY

West Orange, N. J., Oct. 13 (AP)—Long hours of heavy sleep have come to Thomas Edison—he who labored indefatigably most of his 84 years on a meagre five hours of rest a day.

Dr. Hubert S. Howe, the inventor's physician, said today the "Wizard's" resistance to the complication of diseases from which he suffers has been "amazing."

The doctor's bulletin today said: "Mr. Edison slept through the entire night and there is but little chance to report except a gradually progressive somnolence."

Six teaspoonfuls of stewed pears was the only nourishment the dying man could take yesterday, Dr. Howe said. This, he added, is not enough to maintain his strength against the combination of ailments.

Mr. Edison failed yesterday for the first time during his illness to recognize his wife. A bulletin issued by his son, Charles, said the inventor's condition was "practically unchanged," and that "no immediate crisis is feared."

Liquids Now O. K. in the Mails; Does It Do You Any Good?

If it's a liquid, you can mail it—but what good are bottles of four ounces or less?

The postoffice department at Washington relayed to Boston today an order permitting the mailing of liquids and oils, pastes, salves "or other articles easily liquefiable."

They must be contained, however, in "strong bottles, holding four ounces or less." And each bottle must be wrapped in paper or other absorbent substance and then placed in "a cardboard box or other suitable material and packed in a container made of double-faced corrugated pasteboard of good quality."

United Fruit Ship Goes Hard Aground

Washington, Oct. 13 (INS)—The United Fruit Company's liner, Carrillo, bound from New York's port to South America, was hard aground off Cartagena, Colombia, according to a telegram received at the State department.

The mail and passengers were taken off the ship in a launch, but members of the crew remained on board. The vessel was said to be in a dangerous position.

'SLAYER' OF 4 IS GUARDED

Snow Hill, Md., Oct. 13 (AP)—A heavily armed guard patrolled the jail here today, guarding Orphan Jones, 60-year-old negro farm hand, suspected of the slaying yesterday of an entire family of four.

At Berlin, 18 miles from here, Coroner William J. Bratten impanelled four juries, one each for Green Davis, 55; his wife, Iva, and their two children, Elizabeth, 15, and Mary Lee, 13, found dead in their beds late yesterday by neighbors who battered in the doors.

The juries visited the isolated farm house which the murderer had turned into a shambles with his automatic shotgun and axe. The report of autopsy physicians said Davis and his wife had been bludgeoned to death, and the two girls slain with the shotgun.

Jones was arrested shortly after the bodies were found. In his property of the slain family.

MINIMUM WAGE BOARD ALSO RAPPED

Banker Pleads for New Law That Wou'd Bring Violations Before the Gaze of Public

Severe criticism of the State minimum wage commission and of his own alma mater for violations of the minimum wage law was voiced today in the State House by Corliss Lamont, New York banker, Harvard alumnus and champion of the Widener Library scrubwomen at Harvard.

Lamont, who sponsored a "reimbursement collection" for 19 Widener library scrubwomen who were discharged after revealing that they were being paid at a rate of 35 cents an hour or two cents an hour less than the minimum wage, declared before a special legislative commission that his interest in the minimum wage law was born of the Widener incident.

"Although I have no wish to revive that unfortunate scandal," he said, "it seems essential to say something about it before this commission which is looking into the entire minimum wage situation.

ACCUSES BOTH

"A complete knowledge of the facts in that case would serve as a key to understanding why this law has been enforced in so lax a manner. Such complete knowledge of the facts would demand, of course, further investigation because neither Harvard University nor the minimum wage commission itself has seen fit to disclose how Harvard was able to violate the law for nine years—incidentally during America's prosperity period—without being published for that violation."

Lamont declared also that there should be an inquiry into the "understanding" reached in 1925 between the Minimum Wage Commission and Thomas Nelson Perkins of the Harvard Corporation.

THREAT OF DISCHARGE

"It should be remembered," he said, "that official Harvard has been most unwilling to disclose the full truth about the scrubwomen. Even whe nthe violation became publicly known, it came out other than through the Minimum WageC ommission itself."

Lamont declared that one of the scrubwomen had revealed that she and her mates were threatened with "being fired" if they told what wage they were being paid.

He said that a law should be passed requiring a high official of the Commonwealth, perhaps the Governor himself, to publish in newspapers any violations of the minimum wage law.

"I believe that employers, even Harvard University, would not dare to violate the law under such circumstances," he declared.

BRUENING FOR CONCILIATION

Berlin, Oct. 13 (AP)—Germany's foreign policy of reconciliation remains unchanged, Chancellor Heinrich Bruening told the Reichstag immediately after presenting his new cabinet today.

"I shall continue the foreign policy in the spirit of the conversations of the last few months, especially the most recent Franco-German conversations," he declared.

"The Reich's government does not expect salvation solely through international negotiations, or with the aid of foreign countries, but Germany during the past decade has experienced more than all her neighbors how the unsolved problems of the world have increased domestic distress to the limits of what is bearable.

ENDS HIS LIFE IN POLICE CELL

Taunton, Oct. 13—Arrested for drunkenness on complaint of his wife, Albert Rusiecki, 46, father of three children, committed suicide in his cell in the police station here today by hanging himself with his belt.

Rusiecki was arrested last night in his home in Whittendon st., after Mrs. Rusiecki had called police to "take him away before he makes trouble."

Early today his body was found hanging from his cell door. He had looped his belt around a bar in the door, fastened it around his neck and stepped off his cot.

Hairdresser Is Thrilled by Aimee's Brown Tresses

"I think—I know—religion has gone to her hair."

Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton was the subject.

Joseph Battell, coiffeur de luxe, was the speaker.

"I don't see how any woman could have such a head of hair," said M. Battell, "unless there was something behind it all."

"I've dressed hair of men and women for more than twenty years, and I've never found a more marvelous head of hair before."

"Last Saturday afternoon I gave Mrs. Hutton a finger wave just before she opened her revival meeting.

"The first time I touched her hair I knew it was far above any other hair I've ever treated before.

"Soft, fluffy, light—her hair is perfect.

"Today, without any warning, Sister Aimee walked into the shop and asked for a treatment.

"I was flabbergasted, but, although I had an appointment within five minutes, I bade her to sit in the chair.

"She sat in the chair, and asked for a wash first and then—the compliment superb! She asked me for another of my marvellous finger waves.

"'Sister Aimee' treat her hair? Impossible! No one can have a permanent if their hair has been treated with henna, or some other dye.

"'Sister Aimee's' hair has had a permanent before, long before I ever saw it, and it has never been touched with anything but massages such as I gave her today.

"Bleached? Please don't get that idea. She has never done anything to that beautiful crown of hair but give it the best of treatment.

"Proud? Oui! I am as proud as a peacock to have had the honor of treating such hair.

Few "Cuts" Feature Holiday Classes at Tufts

Breaking all previous traditions, classes were held yesterday at Tufts College with far fewer "cuts" than were expected.

The holding of classes on three holidays this year was voted by the faculty, and the students are co-operating with but little dissent.

The engineering classes realized as good attendance as usual, but more cuts were apparent in the liberal arts department. The afternoon laboratory classes suffered most, as many of the students desired to see football games.

The mayor took this action at the request of Sailendra Nath Ghose, president of the India National Congress of America with headquarters in New York, whose daughters, Mariam and Lalabati Ghose, are soon to sail for England to invite the Mahatma to visit America.

The invitation will be carried to the Mahatma by the girls.

NO FREE RIDES BY CARMEN

The several hundred employes of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company, who go about their business by automobile, either their own or the company's, have been warned they will lose their jobs if caught giving pedestrians a "lift," it was revealed today.

Addressed "to all supervisory employes," the warning, signed by A. J. Boardman, vice-president and general manager, said:

"Members of our supervisory force have been carrying free in their automobiles persons who might otherwise become passengers on our street railway and bus lines.

"This company has spent considerable time and money trying to educate the public not to encourage 'thumbers' or other free riders. If our own employes, whose wages depend upon the company's revenues, disregard this, how can we expect anyone else to do otherwise?

"This is to give notice that we intend to discharge anyone who fails to heed this warning."

HUNTS FOR BEER HE 'GAVE AWAY'

Norwalk Ct., Oct. 13 (AP)—Jack Siswick, 28, in trouble because of his generosity, today made the rounds of his friends in hope of returning 14 kegs of beer to police.

At the same time, a confiscated truck load reposed outside police headquarters.

The truck, containing 80 kegs of beer, was seized on the Boston Post rd. yesterday and the driver, Edward Lowe, of Brooklyn, arrested. The truck was taken to the garage where Siswick is employed.

Siswick tasted the contents of one of the kegs, he admitted to police. He sampled more. His generosity arose. Sedans and limousines, even a horse and wagon, drove up to the garage in response to his calls, and drove away with a liquid load.

When police interrupted 14 of the 80 kegs had been given away. Siswick was charged with theft.

HAIRDRESSER'S IS HER FIRST CONCERN

Ignores Daily Press Conference to Have Her Personal Appearance Cared For

The woman dominated the revivalist for a time today, when Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton substituted an apppointment with a hairdresser for her usual morning newspaper conference in the Hotel Lenox.

Although somewhat fatigued as a result of yesterday's crowded schedule featured by a football game, revival meeting and a mission trip to two night clubs, the evangelist was still interested in her personal appearance.

Mrs. Hutton slept late in preparation for another busy day, including an afternoon visit to Boston Garden to look over the elaborate settings to be used in tonight's meeting, dedicated to the American Legion.

She was apprehensive that the settings, shipped here from Angel-

HUB BOAT ON ROCKS; 6 SAVED

Portsmouth, N. H., Oct. 13 (AP)—A 60-foot cabin cruiser owned by Richard E. Ellis of 43 St. Mary's st., Brookline, was wrecked on the rocks of a breakwater in the Isle of Shoals group early today. Six persons aboard succeeded in climbing ashore over the rocks and finding refuge in an unoccupied camp. The owner was not aboard.

The cruiser, en route from Boston to Portland, Me., had anchored off the Isle of Shoals, but during the night a gale forced her on the rocks between Cedar and Smuttynose islands. A coast guard patrol boat found her filled with water this morning and, investigating, located the party, which was removed to Portsmouth on another coast guard craft.

N.E. INDUSTRIES SHOW GAIN IN BUSINESS

Renewed activity in a dozen industries throughout New England was revealed today in a survey report by the New England Council.

In the textile field, a mill at Rochester, N. H., is operating day and night; a Fall River mill is reopening to employ 200, and a New Bedford plant has increased its machinery.

Reopening of a dress company in Stamford, Ct., employing about 100; doubling of business by a Lewiston, Me., shirt company, and establishment of new dress companies in Boston and Lynn, are reported in the silk department.

NEW SHOE FACTORIES.

As for leather, the report shows two new shoe factories in Lynn, while a third has added 5000 square feet of floor space. Two new companies have been established in Chelsea and Athol, and a tanning and finishing leather plant has been opened in Danvers.

A paper company in Lee has been remodelled to employ about 100.

A rubber company in Lawrence with a new mill will add 250 employes.

Increased production by a metal manufacturing plant in Lewiston, Me., and formation of a new company in New Haven, Ct., are announced.

MOTORS AND RADIO

Motor manufacturers in Boston are moving to larger quarters. An airplane propeller corporation from West Homestead, Pa., is moving to East Hartford, Ct.

A short-wave broadcasting company in Boston is constructing the first broadcasting station to operate under international license. A television company plans to lease additional space for manufacture of short-wave and television parts.

FILENE WARNS OF REVOLT

New York, Oct. 13—"I return to the United States forced to believe that we are facing a world revolution. It will be a peaceful industrial revolution only if our business men, our bankers and our statesmen have enough vision to give up their traditional optimism and actively meet the dangerous conditions facing them."

Edward A. Filene, Boston merchant, thus expressed himself last night after his arrival from Europe on the steamer Conte Grande.

His tour of 10 leading European nations has convinced him of the urgent need for prompt action.

"It is dangerous to depend on time alone or the frequently-mentioned business cycle to provide a remedy for these dangers," continued Filene. "We have today millions out of work, suffering for the very necessities of life. What is needed is not merely a commission, but some fact-finding body which will bring together the world's surplus and those in need, a body of men who are willing to put work into the facts which they gather."

Filene condemned wage reductions and the laying off of employes by many of the larger American industrial firms.

3 in Hospital After Card Fight

Charges of cheating in a card game at 3 Adams pl., South Boston, last night, started a fight which sent three men to City Hospital for treatment, one of them possibly seriously hurt.

The most seriously injured was George Guoski, 60, a boarder at the Adams pl. house. He was held for treatment at the hospital, while John Bair, 72, of 803 East First st., South Boston, and Paul Rasimoyekas, 49, of 112½ Old Harbor st., South Boston, were treated and locked up.

Skipper's Pants Go Once, Not Twice

New York, Oct. 13—Capt. Cole Marshall, commander of an East river barge, was taking a siesta recently in his cabin. His pants were draped over a chair near the door. As he lay, half asleep and half awake, he saw an intruder enter, tuck the pants under his arm and depart. In his trouserless condition, the captain forebore to take up the chase.

Yesterday the captain heard a noise at the cabin door, aroused himself and donned his new trousers, this time pursuing the thief into the arms of the police.

Top Nut Club Kills Itself by Reaching Too High in Sky

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—The membership roll of the Top Nut Club, New York's highest honor, is now closed forever.

The club comprises a group of young engineers who have been installing NBC's experiment television studio in the Empire State Building. To gain membership they had to climb the mooring mast atop the skyscraper, then shin up a pole and touch the top on the weather vane. That meant they had touched the highest man-made pinnacle on earth—1,262 feet.

Now, however, the young men have put up an antenna mast above the weather vane so thin that no one can climb it.

MILADY EATS WHEN AND WHAT SHE LIKES

London, Oct. 13 (INS)—"Madam, you may now eat," are the orders "Milady Dame Fashion," ever fickle and now extremely feminine, has sent forth to her countless millions of worshippers and followers in all parts of the world.

The slender streamline figure, the 18-day diet, are now things of the past. Fatness, curves and grace is now the fashion, and the "buxom lassie" has come into her own again.

In all parts of England and on the continent, women are hastening to obey "Milady Dame Fashion," and as the result beauty parlors are overflowing with women purchasing a figure to fill the ample proportions of fashionable dress.

The anguished cry of the slender is "a body to fit the clothes" and for the next few months women have decided they will look like women instead of endeavoring to give an impression of a peculiarly underfed species of spectre.

Now the battle cry of the modern and fashionable young lady is:

"Take lots of lard and butter and have occasional beefsteaks. Gladys says bananas are delightfully flesh-making."

"My love," one sweet young girl was heard to remark, "my old corsets positively burst on me yesterday. Isn't it thrilling!"

"Yes, isn't it? I broke a deck-chair myself only last night."

RELATIVES VIE FOR RICHES OF MRS. WOOD

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—An old lady's kin vied at law today for control of her gold.

The old lady herself—Mrs. Ida Wood—fretted and fumed in her new hotel apartment while her step-granddaughter, Mrs. Blanche Wood Shields, challenged the guardianship now exercised over Mrs. Wood by the latter's nephew.

It was from the folds of Mrs. Wood's old-fashioned frocks that there tumbled last week nearly one million dollars in currency.

Mrs. Shields seeks to have the nephew, Otis Wood, removed as guardian. She contends that force was used to take the money from Mrs. Wood, and that Mrs. Wood has been treated poorly.

"I talked with her," Mrs. Shields said. "And she told me they had taken her money from her."

Although she now is settled in more comfortable quarters than those she occupied for a decade while relatives wondered what had happened to her, Mrs. Wood remains inconsolable.

Wood and three nephews represent one group of Mrs. Wood's kinsmen. Mrs. Shields and Miss Emma Wood represent the opposing group. It was explained that they are grandchildren not of Mrs. Wood but of her husband by a previous marriage.

COLBY FACES QUARANTINE

Waterville, Me., Oct. 13—Quarantine of Colby College is being considered today following an infantile paralysis diagnosis in the case of Kenneth T. Lane, 19 year-old student of West Newton, Mass.

Lane is under treatment in an isolated ward of the college infirmary while his roommate is under observation. The diagnosis was made by Dr. John O. Piper, college physician, and Dr. Clair S. Bowman of the State Board of Health.

In the absence of Franklin W. Johnson, president of the university, Dr. Bowman announced that any indication of a spread of the disease would result in a quarantine of the 500 students and faculty.

Attempts are being made to locate Lane's parents, who are believed to be in Maine on a hunting trip.

HEAVY VOTE IS BEING CAST AT PRIMARIES

Michael J. Murphy and Charles W. Lovett. Twenty-six candidates sought eight places as councillors-at-large, and there were 14 candidates for 12 school committee positions.

Early balloting in Lowell was light, as usual, with an extra large vote expected to be cast in the late afternoon and evening. In a partisan election, Mayor Thomas H. Braden was opposed by former Mayor George H. Brown for the Republican nomination to succeed himself.

BITTER CONTESTS

On the Democratic ticket for the same office were former Mayor Thomas J. Corbett, Daniel J. O'Connor, James J. Bruin, Stephen Flynn, Charles H. Slowey and Edward D. Cawley.

In Cambridge, where the campaign was one of the most bitter in years, extra details of police and plainclothes men were assigned to the polling booths in the East Cambridge section.

Cambridge has nine candidates for mayor and 111 for all offices, including the city council, school committee and board of assessors. In the mayoralty contest Mayor Richard M. Russell and Patrick J. Delaney of the city council head the list of nine. Three women, Mrs. Mary Callinan, Mrs. Mary M. Hafey and Mrs. Elizabeth S. McAuliffe, are candidates for places on the school committee nominations.

FIGHT IN WALTHAM

In Somerville, Mayor Murphy is opposed for the nomination by Atty. Arthur D. Healey. Alderman Louis Gobron is opposed by George Pratt for the Republican nomination.

The greatest list of candidates for the mayoralty nomination in the history of the city is found in Waltham today, with Mayor Duane opposed by six others in the non-partisan race for the two nominations.

Worcester also has nine men in the fight for the two party nominations. Mayor O'Hara is opposed by four others in the Republican party, while four seek the choice among the Democratic voters.

Arkansas Officers Led to Still by Flame of a Match

Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 13 (AP)

They're hunting stills with matches down in Arkansas.

Sheriff Rucker of Saline County and Sergts. Trawek and Henson of the Little Rock police will vouch for the efficacy of the system. This is their story and they stick to it.

The officers met at the Saline-Pulaski country line and were exchanging pleasantries when somebody detected the odor of mash. Someone suggested the flame of a match would point the direction of a still.

A match was struck; the officers followed the flame. They found a still and, in a nearby house, arrested two men and three women.

$200,000 FIRE AT DENNISPORT

Dennisport, Oct. 13—A $200,000 blaze which swept the entire business section here last night was being probed by police today as firemen worked to prevent the smouldering embers from spreading further destruction.

The blaze started at about 10 o'clock, police say, in a barber shop owned by James Howard, in Main st. From there it spread through several adjacent stores, doing considerable damage. Howard told police several boys were playing in the rear of his shop yesterday and may have started the blaze.

Firemen here were hampered for about an hour in fighting the blaze by inadequate facilities. It was necessary to lay a mile of hose to Great Herring river to secure sufficient water. The fire was controlled after fire departments from Orleans, Dennis, Brewster, Yarmouth and Chatham responded to appeals for aid.

State Trooper Arthur Joyce, of the Barnstable barracks saw two men looting the ruins of a grocery store. He arrested them and brought them to the barracks where they gave their names as Frank Monterio and John Daluz, both of Harwich.

THEBAUD OFF TO HALIFAX

Gloucester, Oct. 13—The Gertrude L. Thebaud today is ploughing its way to Halifax and the battle for the North Atlantic Fisherman's trophy, now held by the Lunenberg fishing schooner Bluenose.

Capt. John J. Matheson was at the helm as she left the wharf, Capt. Ben Pine having decided to make the trip by rail. The Thebaud was sailing beautifully as she left and had cleared the breakwater in 11 minutes.

A large crowd was at Burnham's marine railway, where the Thebaud had been receiving her final grooming, and a great cheer arose as the schooner started out from the wharf under full sail.

Old-Fashioned Breakfast Is Modern Now

By MARTHA LEE

A New England Sunday breakfast in pioneer days was something to look forward to from Sunday to Sunday.

The breakfast started off, of course, with the baked beans, which were probably put back Saturday night into the still warm brick oven. On Saturday, too, the dried salt codfish was soaked, boiled, mixed with seasoning and hot mashed potato and shaped into the codfish cakes to be fried Sunday morning. And as fortification for the long walk or drive to church, grandmother tells us that the succulent sausage was often included in this important meal.

These snappy fall days give us appetites almost as keen as those enjoyed by our forefathers, but the modern homemaker has little time or inclination to fuss with the elaborate breakfast prepared by the methods just described.

UP-TO-DATE KINDS

Wide awake manufacturers of pure food products, however, have come to her assistance with old-fashioned brick oven baked beans sealed in sanitary tin jackets, shredded codfish that permits the making of quick codfish cakes with the real old-time New England flavor, and health bread, in a homlyke loaf that is rich in vital vitamines.

The blended goodness of several finely grained flours is baked into this tasty loaf. It is rich in proteins, high in vitamin content and has the necessary roughage to regulate the system naturally. Try it toasted and you'll know the delight of an entirely new and delicious flavor.

With the brick oven baked beans, the wise mother serves a generous supply of pure prepared mustard, to bring out the flavor of the beans and to aid the digestive processes.

FREE SEASONING BOOK

I've been trying out some recipes from the book, "Seasoning Secrets for Home Cooking," which includes practical home recipes from such authorities as Maxine Huguet, chef at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel in Philadelphia; Roger Cretaux, chef of the Hotel Roosevelt in New York, as well as several from famous home economists and a great many new dishes tested in the Fulden Laboratory in New York.

I think you'll want me to send you a copy of this free booklet, and I'm sure you'll enjoy as much as I have, trying a new poultry stuffing, the cheese and bacon grill, easy and delicious mustard pickles and a collection of new and interesting sandwich fillings, as well as many other delicious dishes that I can't mention here.

Just a line will bring your copy pronto.

PIGS IN BLANKETS

Tasty Little Pigs in Blankets added to this Pigs in Blankets gala breakfast will make father purr with contentment all the rest of the day. And they're so easy to prepare!

Pedigreed sausages, made in New England, of choicest meats blended with pure spices, are parboiled for four minutes, then cooled, and each sausage wrapped spirally in bacon of the same brand. This mild, sugar-cured bacon is evenly streaked with fat and lean and its fine quality is always the same whether you buy it in the strip or sliced in pound or half pound packages.

The breakfast codfish cakes can be the work of just a few moments, using the prepared shredded codfish cakes—you'll recognize the can by the red band across the label. These codfish cakes are made of the same carefully selected codfish as is used in shredded codfish, mixed with the best quality potatoes procurable, properly seasoned and blended, ready just to form and fry.

Shaped into balls about the size of a half-dollar and deep fat fried, or just formed into cakes and fried in a pan, these shredded codfish cakes are truly delicious.

Maybe you think that this is a reckless breakfast for a careful calorie counter, but it really means that a 3 o'clock or 4 o'clock dinner will be the only other meal necessary on the "day of rest," and so, at the end of the day, the sum total of calories will be no higher, labor will be lightened and the family contentment increased 100 per cent plus.

Faithfully Yours,

Martha Lee

AN UP TO-DATE SUNDAY BREAKFAST

These oven baked beans have the same inimitable flavor of our pilgrim great-grandmother's.

Shredded codfish balls today are quick and easy. Fish cakes are always popular and go well with many dishes.

Refrigerator Desserts

If you would have the desserts you freeze in your mechanical refrigerator as smooth as the "cranked" variety, use one-third corn syrup instead of all sugar for sweetening, and use a small amount of gelatine, dissolved in cold water. Remember that the more sugar a mixture contains the more slowly it will freeze.

Prize Awards End Martha Lee's Most Successful School

THE MOST successful annual cooking school ever conducted by the Boston Evening American has drawn to a close, much to the regret of the thousands of guests who, we believe, would gladly have come day after day to enjoy the benefits of this worth-while school, which was conducted by Martha Lee, assisted by Mrs. J. Watson Shockley.

Mrs. Shockley expressed herself as being "honestly delighted with the wonderful attendance and keen attention of the audience at each of the sessions." She also commented on the unusually intelligent questions asked during the Question Forum.

"No wonder New England is famous for its cookery," she said, "since New England home-makers are so alert to all that's new and progressive in the home-making and culinary arts."

CAME MANY MILES

Our registration slips show that women came many, many miles to these lecture-demonstrations, and I do hope that they have taken away from the school practical ideas and interesting recipes that will help them in their housekeeping all the year round.

The major award of the day—the Glenwood Range—was presented by Miss Daurice Darling of the Home Service Department of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, to Mrs. R. A. Smith, 19 Garden st., Cambridge. Mrs. Smith proved to be a very sweet bride of two months, and we know that the Glenwood will simplify the baking problems that beset the novice.

A BIG SURPRISE

The surprise of the afternoon was the award of another dozen of the beautiful, solid silver, Symphony pattern teaspoons by the Thomas Long Company of 42 Summer st. These were presented by Mr. Nock, executive of the Towle Company of Newburyport, manufacturer of this beautiful new silverware. The teaspoons went to Mrs. Raymond Dunn, 452 Baker st., West Roxbury.

The Sunbeam Electric Mixer, from C. F. Hovey Company, went to Mrs. Catherine MacDonald, 233 Bellevue st., Newton; the case of Pureoxia Ginger Ale to Mrs. V. Ponash, 81 Galen st., Watertown; the Chamberlain Leadership Shoulder to Mrs. J. F. Kelley, 36-A Gould st., Wakefield; the five-pound can of Rumford Baking Powder to Mrs. P. Roccini, 1044 Saratoga st., East Boston; 1 case of Rinso (a year's supply) to Mrs. Mabel Case, 3 Grove pl., Melrose; the flowers from Penn, The Florist to Dorothy M. Shallow, 34 Herbert rd., Arlington; the case of Moxie to Mrs. Catherine Queenan, 43 Gray st., Boston; 1 Hood's Ice Cream Cake to Zelma G. Hamm, 122 Newport st., Arlington; 3 lbs. of Deerfoot Sausages to Mrs. Florence Kelliher, 6 Grey st., Boston; 1 case of Country Club Orange Dry to Miss Catherine Martin, 198 West Brookline st., Boston; and the Apple Sauce Cake to Mrs. E. A. McKenzie, 12 Parkman st., Dorchester.

Woman Wins an Oil Burner

Mrs. Lillian E. Clark, 240 Franklin st., Cambridge, winner of the Lynn Range Oil Burner, donated by the Lynn Products Company at the Martha Lee Cooking School in the Hotel Statler, was the envy of the thousands of guests who inspected this popular burner during the four-day session of the school.

The Lynn Range Oil Burner can be quickly installed in your old coal range, transforming it with new instantaneous heat.

COOKS IN 9 MINUTES' BOILING

"I find Mueller's goes farther than any other macaroni"
"It cooks up better"

IN many a confidential talk between mothers of families, this important economy-point is discussed. Mueller's Macaroni makes a larger dish, when boiled, than any other macaroni. More nourishment—a more satisfying meal.

In every important feature, Mueller's Macaroni is essentially different from any other brand. It cooks up better. A more appealing taste, a greater lightness and digestibility, higher nutrition, and greater abundance when cooked.

Don't be satisfied with "just any macaroni". You owe it to yourself and your family to use only the best—made from the heart of the wheat by special Mueller processes. Your grocer has Mueller's, or can get it for you.

ENGINEERS TO HELP HOOVER PROSPERITY

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—American engineers are getting together to help one of their number lead the United States back to prosperity.

The American Engineering Council, organized in 1920 under the leadership of President Hoover, is going to enlist the aid of 10,000 engineers in a movement to increase and to stabilize employment and to prevent the adoption of what it believes would be unwise legislation with respect to unemployment.

Its aim, leaders announced, will be not only to promote emergency measures, but to develop sound permanent employment policies throughout American industry. It will work with the President's relief organization, of which Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., and himself a member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, is head.

F. J. Chesterman of Pittsburgh, vice-president and general manager of the Bell Telephone Co., of Pennsylvania, has been appointed chairman of the Engineers' National Committee, whose other members are Gen. R. C. Marshall, Jr., of New York, who was in charge of the construction division of the war department during the world war; E. K. Ruth, American Oak Leather Co., Cincinnati; and W. R. Webster, Bridgeport Brass Co., Bridgeport, Conn.

COACH MAKERS TO HAVE NEW CONTEST

Perpetuation of craftsmanship reached by European guilds of the Middle Ages is the aim of the $75,000 coach building competition now being launched under joint auspices of the Boston Evening American and the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild.

Every boy between 12 and 20 is eligible for membership in the guild. Boys who belonged last year are eligible again if they are within the age limits. Coaches built last year, except the four scholarship winners, may be entered in the new competition.

The competition now includes boys throughout Canada. The age divisions are 12 to 15 inclusive, and 16 to 19 inclusive.

Identical awards will be given in each of the age divisions, starting off with four university scholarships of four years each, two junior and two senior, and carrying right on through the more than 1,000 other awards.

Each of the two state winners in each state will receive $100 instead of $50, plus the right to attend the Guild convention and compete for the national awards, with all expenses paid.

Each of the second-place winners in each state will also receive $100 and have his model re-judged in competition for the scholarships.

There will be eight cash awards for craftsmanship in each age division, in each state, and these awards will consist of $15 and $35 each instead of $5 and $10.

Opportunity to share these awards is open to every boy who reads this article. All he has to do to become a member of the Boston Evening American Chapter of the Guild is to fill out an enrollment card, obtainable free from any dealer in General Motors cars or from his scout master.

Questions should be sent to the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild Editor, in care of the Boston Evening American.

CARDS HAVE BEEN RECEIVED FROM MRS. CHARLES SUMNER BIRD to meet Miss Lydia Evans at a dinner dance tomorrow at 7:30, to be held at Endean, Mrs. Bird's beautiful country estate in East Walpole. This will be one of the smart affairs of the season.

MRS. CHARLES SUMNER BIRD

The Bird homestead is very charming, long, low and rambling, with other domiciles dotted about for various members of the family when they are in New England. One delightful little cottage is the home of Mrs. Francis W. Bird (Margery Phelps), who has three children, and another houses Mrs. Lyman Bass when she is not in Buffalo with her politically-minded husband.

Lady Bird is well known in both parties—Democratic and Republican—but this will NOT be a democratic party for Lydia.

We hear that Mrs. Richard Olney (Anne to her many friends) is opening a shop in town. We tried to find out what kind and where, but could not at this writing. Nancy, a debutante of two seasons ago, is still at the Old Corner Book Shop helping her friends select their book of the month, but Kathleen is to help mother in her new venture. Mother has been quite a devotee of the card-table. Hailing from Worcester, they still keep their affiliations with that town, Mr. Olney's sister, Miss Katherine, still attached to the registry of deeds. Nancy is a horse lover and keeps her steed at the Norfolk Hunt Club.

Mrs. Anita Woodward to Open Flower Mart

OPENING UP AGAIN ON THE HILL WILL BE MRS. ANITA WOODWARD and her flower mart. She and her mother, Mrs. Homer Richardson, have supervised a very successful little shop at Nahant this summer, which will be kept open until the middle of November. Mrs. Richardson has gone on the house committee of the Women's Republican Club; everyone wonders why. With houses and shops of her own to manage, housekeeping must indeed be a talent with her.

THE SIDNEY WILLIAMS' dinner dance for their second daughter, Jane, will be held on the Hunnewell estate in Wellesley. Mrs. Williams was Mary Hunnewell of THE Hunnewells. Jane prepared at Miss Winsor's School, graduating last June. She is of the Dresden china type, quite unlike Sister Mary. It was certainly a surprise when Mary slipped off and got married last June, but she is still BEAMING, so it looks like a perfect match. Jane's cousins, the Cheever boys, are head ushers for her party.

MRS. FREDERICK W. EATON is giving a luncheon at the Concord Country Club next Saturday for Miss Molly Harlow. Last winter Mrs. Eaton entertained with many dinners for this same comely blonde. She is a sweet looking girl from "somewhere into the here."

* * *

MR. AND MRS. JAMES DEAN have sent out their invitations to Dodo's dance on November 6 at The Country Club. The ushers' dinner will be held there also. Miss Dorothea dances as well as she plays the piano and is a yachtsman as well. Her father, Jimmy Dean, has been elected commodore of the Cohasset Yacht Club, succeeding Mr. Hugh Bancroft.

Dorothea Dean

THE I. TUCKER BURRS entertained the Freddy Whitwells over the week-end at their handsome place on Brush Hill rd. Mrs. Burr is sister of Andrew J. Peters and this is the first summer that the Burrs have not gone to North Harbor.

* * *

AS WE MENTIONED IN A previous interview, Katharine Howe's engagement has been of long standing, but not actually made public until this week. Katharine is the cousin of Joan Tuckerman of Union Park. Her little sister, Phyllis, who comes out in a couple of years, is a beauty, dark and vivacious like her snappy father, Dudley Howe. Mrs. Howe was one of the five Atterbury girls of New York, and her sister—whose former name has escaped me—divorced her husband a few years ago and married Dudley's brother, Henry Wainwright Howe. Mrs. Howe visited her sister in Reno that unsettled winter and the tabbies sat up and wondered.

HARRIET MORSE HOLIDAY BRIDE

SOCIETY FAVORITE WEDS

Ex-President of Vincent Club Married

Wearing her mother's wedding gown of ivory satin, with sleeves, bertha and cap of old duchess and rose point lace, a tulle veil covering the long train, and carrying a bouquet of white orchids, gardenias and lilies of the valley, Miss Harriet Morse was married yesterday to Dr. George Putnam Sturgis. The noon ceremony took place in Milton Academy Chapel, the Rev. Abbot Peterson, rector of the First Parish Church in Brookline, officiating.

Miss Morse, who is a daughter of the late Robert Cunningham Morse, of Brush Hill rd., Milton, and the present Mrs. Theodore E. Brown, was attended by a young matron, Mrs. John Bertram Whitelaw of New Haven, the former Helen Streeter of Boston as matron of honor, and by Miss Josephine Lowell Sturgis, a sister of the bridegroom, as maid of honor. Miss Sturgis, by the way, is engaged to one of the young doctors, serving Dr. Sturgis as usher, Dr. Albert Hall Harris, 2d, of Rochester.

Six Bridesmaids

Three of the six bridesmaids are also members of the recently engaged group, Miss Grace Cushing, whose betrothal to Mr. Charles L. Hubbard, Jr., has been announced; Miss Susan Dette, who will marry Mr. Arthur A. Holbrook, and Miss Henrietta E. Sedgwick, whose parents recently made known her engagement to Mr. John E. Lockwood.

The other three in the group were Miss Caroline Saltonstall of Readville, Miss Isabella Grandin of Boston, and Miss McQueen Gibbs of Baltimore. All were gowned alike in corn-colored chiffon, set off by blue sashes, the contrasting note repeated in blue bows on their yellow felt hats. They carried large bouquets of larkspur and yellow African daisies. No difference was made in the costumes of the two honor attendants.

Mr. Edward Sturgis, Jr., served his brother in the capacity of best man, and the usher group included two other brothers, Howard O. and Charles R. L. Sturgis, John P. Hubbard, Henry B. Jackson, all of Milton; Dr. Somers Sturgis, a cousin of Groton; Lawrence Coolidge of Boston, Roger S. Coolidge of Center Harbor, N. H., Dr. Walter E. Garry of Nashville, Tenn., Clay H. Hollister, Jr., Dr. Sturgis' brother-in-law of Holyoke, and Dr. Harris, already mentioned, of Rochester.

Popular in Clubs

The bridegroom and his brothers are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sturgis, 241 Adams st., Milton. He was graduated from Harvard with the class of '27, and from the medical school in 1931, and his clubs include the Delphic, Hasty Pudding, Aesculapian and Harvard club of Boston. After their wedding trip he will bring his bride back here to live, either in or near Milton, as he will continue his practice here.

Mrs. Brown received at the reception held at her former home on Brush Hill rd., in a dress of seal-brown, contrasted with green-blue crepe, with a corsage of orchids and gardenias. Mrs. Sturgis wore plum-colored silk.

The bride made her debut during the 1925-26 season, after attending the Winsor and Foxcroft Schools, at a tea at home. She became a member of both the Junior League and Vincent Club, doing active work in both, especially the latter, of which she was elected president a year ago last spring.

Knitted Fabric for Sports

DON'T IMAGINE that the knitted sport suit of today in any way resembles its sister of yesterday. Evolution has meant something in the life of this girl.

EXAMINE FOR a moment the new knitted materials, when you get a chance. They are so firmly knit—or woven—that there isn't even the faintest chance of their taking on that stretching vein which of yore they were wont to do.

* * *

THE COLORS, too, are vivid or dull, all according to taste. They are plain or mixed in tone and in every instance they make up most satisfactorily.

THE KNIT overblouse is in the new short length, a purled band assuring close fit over skirt top. The deep yoke in the lighter tone, and wider weave, has a cord finish at its high neckline, the fastening a bow and buttons center black.

Best Remdey is Made At Home

To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair and makes it soft and glossy. Barbo will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

Luxury With Economy

Mother and I were talking this morning about how much better a combination of silk and rayon wears than either fabric alone, and she said, "I'll never forget what a thrill I got the first time I wore silk underwear, how soft and lovely it felt, and how much better my dresses fitted over it. I remember it was Kayser's, and how surprised I was to find that it wore longer and washed better than cotton." When I told her that Filene's is having a special sale on Kayser underthings now at $1 she made me jot it down to get her a generous supply. "Kayser undies are always good," she declared. "And even if I don't need them now they will keep, so get plenty while you are getting those wonderful values for $1, Priscilla." Unless you have seen these beautiful garments you cannot appreciate what a rare opportunity this is, for these same undies formerly sold for $1.25 and $1.65. Kayser labels, you know, have always stood for quality, durability, elegant texture, fine finish, and above all—perfect fit! The silk and rayon panties have yoke front and band finish and they come in small, medium or large sizes, in the very same quality that formerly sold for $1.65. The bloomers are reinforced to the knee, and they are full over the hips for fit and wear, and finished with elastic at waist and knee. Phone Hub. 4520 till 9:30 P. M. if you can't get in to pick them out yourself. Mail orders filled, too. Filene's, Street Floor.

You Look Slimmer at Once In a Phelps Reducing Corset

There have been so many requests lately regarding the Phelps reducing corset, that I'm glad to announce its re-appearance in these columns. If you've ever worn one you know what wonderful things it does . . . If your hips refuse to be suppressed, if your diaphragm will bulge in spite of restraining garments, if your waistline is hidden beneath surplus rolls of flesh—there is something you can do about it—go and try on a Phelps reducing corset! It is entirely different from any other reducing garment on the market, made of a specially loomed fabric, not rubber. Its chief charm is that the moment you put it on your waistline measures inches less. And after you've worn it a short time, your clothes have to be "taken in." Alterations and repairs are made without charge as long as you wear it. You can depend upon it—it makes all the things you've expected of a corset for years and years actually come true! But you should try one on (no obligation of course) for this shop shows it only if you are willing to do so. Otherwise you simply can't form any idea of the improvement it makes in you—at once. It really is a marvel—and you can't get one anywhere but at a touchdown at the football game!" That's why fair football fans are rooting for Queen Quality lisle mesh stockings. They don't even have to worry about splinters on the bleachers, for lisle mesh hosiery doesn't have runs. But it has all the foot comfort at the game, and it is absolutely style-right for all sportswear. And only 85 cents a pair! For the dance after the game you'll need the sophistication of those dainty chiffon "Lacettes" that are causing the college girls to go into a huddle in the Queen Quality Shoe Shop these days. "Lacettes" are the favorites for evening, and priced so reasonably at $1, two for $1.85—with Honeycomb Mesh and lace mesh also in high favor. Follow the crowd to the Queen Quality Shoe Shop, 158 Tremont St.

"No Runs But

What a Big

temptation it is to just buy everything one wants this season! With new styles so fascinating, with prices so astonishingly low and quality unbelievably high for these very low prices, it seems almost criminal extravagance to pass up shopping opportunities such as the stores are presenting this fall! Every shop that you go to has so many new items and ideas to show you that it makes buying for your wardrobe, for your home and family more like an exciting adventure than the old irksome task you used to dread, especially if you choose your stores wisely . . .

The shops I have mentioned, Anne, are giving such outstanding values this week that I want to urge you to visit each and see for yourself! More unusual values next week—watch for my news then, for it will be something very special, I promise you.

Devotedly yours,

PUZZLE SOLVERS PUZZLE NON SOLVER OF PUZZLERS

By GILBERT SELDES

I AM AFRAID THAT 750 GIRLS who have just entered Hunter [illegible] making fun of somebody. Or perhaps [illegible] of questionnaires, for which no one can blame them. After the fifth and often after the first questionnaire the impulse to write something absurd or bawdy, to annoy the questioner, is almost irresistible. I recall the intelligence tests in the army. By some accident I had to take it twice, in two separate camps, I hasten to say, and the same questions were asked. In one of them you were supposed to check the right answer, of three, to the problem: If I couldn't swim and fell overboard I would (a) dive for the bottom and walk ashore, [illegible] shout for help, and [illegible] hold on to the boat. I checked (a). The war was pretty nearly over anyhow.

GILBERT SELDES

No Wedding Bells

The Hunter girls do not, as newspaper headlines put it, plan to wed—that is, all except one. On that subject, I have no comment, as it is unlikely that what they plan and I do not plan can affect me. But when I read that many of them are "inclined to drama writing, puzzle solving, sports, reading, music and journalism as careers," I am baffled and a little [illegible]. Many of these are public professions which [illegible] no matter how hard you try—drama writing [illegible] and [illegible]. And I am afraid I am not going to [illegible] professional readers, either.

But the puzzle [illegible] make me doubt my reason. More of the young women voted for puzzle solving than for cooking and taking care of children, so it must be a recognized profession, although I [illegible] heard of it. There are, of course, editors for puzzle pages, but they invariably insist that you send in the solution with the problem, because they can't be bothered; their pretext is that before offering a puzzle they have to be sure that the answer [illegible]. And if you count these professionals out, what other [illegible] are there? Is it likely that the rage for [illegible] reached such a point that infuriated [illegible] classified telephone book and ring up a [illegible]

Inoculated and Safe

So far I have remained immune to the disease of puzzles. I [illegible] at stated intervals (when recovering from the flu and long railway journeys after sunset) and go on for years indifferent to every pencil and paper game in the world. Even "The Book of Dilemmas," with moral puzzles and the circumstances of daily life [illegible] failed to move me. I do not solve charades. On [illegible] an actress in a rug, but no one [illegible] and Cleopatra, so I gave it up.

Premature Popularity

The [illegible] came too early to the United States. Since I never shared the enthusiasm, I took it as a fairly accurate symptom of the vacant mind, in spite of the philosophers, composers and writers who were a little mad on the subject. The one possibly desirable effect of the puzzles was not any sharpening of the wits but keeping people at home. I had a dream that the puzzles would bring the old-fashioned parlor into existence again, but they seem to have brought in the new-fangled bar.

[illegible] the girls at Hunter are deliberately kidding [illegible]. I [illegible] have chosen a profession which is dying. And [illegible] the career of dramatist isn't any too lively at the moment [illegible]. Perhaps the young women were too modest about their [illegible] to say that they really intended to become television actresses.

..another expert chooses Crisco for all frying and shortening purposes

During the recent cooking school Mrs. J. Watson Shockley showed thousands of women how to make fried and baked foods more delicious by using Crisco. Naturally, she used Crisco because she knew that she could depend on this all-purpose cooking fat to help her demonstrate her points. And she is only one of hundreds of experts who prefer Crisco. Ever since Mrs. J. Watson Shockley held her school here, more and more women have been telling their grocers how much they like Crisco, and how glad they are that they tried it. Because of this growing interest the local grocers have decided to feature Crisco at special prices this week so that every woman may have an opportunity to learn of its many Superior qualities.

What $16,000 buys in The American Weekly

A full page in color more than twice the size of any other magazine page in the world . . . 5,500,000 families at a cost of less than ⅓ cent per family . . . The attention of the entire family instead of a single buying factor.

AFTER all, the most accurate gauge of the advertising value of any magazine is its editorial appeal.

An editor must know what interests people —and why—or his magazine will not be a profitable medium for the advertiser.

To a deep understanding of people and their emotions can be attributed the advertising success of The American Weekly, mightiest magazine of them all.

So intriguing is its editorial content that more than 5,500,000 families read each and every issue.

So broad is its appeal that every member of every family finds something between its covers to absorb him or her.*

In times like these—when every advertising dollar invested should make sales today, tomorrow, and next year—think of The American Weekly!

Think of your advertising message carried by the world's most interesting magazine into 5,500,000 homes located in the richest buying areas of the country!

Think of telling your advertising story in four colors on a page more than twice the size of any other magazine page at a cost of less than ⅓ cent per family!

Reader-interest plus lowest-cost-per-family brings the most sales per advertising dollar.

No wonder The American Weekly carried more advertising in 1930 than it carried in 1929.

No wonder that 1931 is another banner year for this great magazine!

When the going is hard, shrewd advertisers concentrate more and more in this hard-hitting medium.

The American Weekly dominates the urban markets by concentrating 70% of its total circulation in 578 of America's 997 towns and cities of 10,000 population and over. (1930 U. S. census figures.)

In each of 152 cities, it reaches one out of every two families
In 108 more cities, 40 to 50% of the families
In an additional 146 cities, 30 to 40%
In another 172 cities, 20 to 30%

. . . and, in addition, more than 1,700,000 families in thousands of other communities, large and small, regularly buy The American Weekly.

Where can you spend your advertising dollar more effectively?

Cock-A-Doodle-Doo

The month of October continues The American Weekly advertising linage and revenue gains of the first nine months, with an increase of 20% over October, 1930, making a record ten months in American Weekly history.

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW CHUCKLES AT CRITICS ACROSS THE SEA

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

ROBERT E. ROGERS

FROM THE VERY FIRST WORDS of his Sunday transatlantic broadcast, it was obvious that Bernard Shaw was in the very highest spirits. The voice was rich and strong, the vigorous baritone of a man of fifty. "Hello-o-o, America!" he boomed, lengthening the vowels as if to make them stretch across the Atlantic! "Hello-o-o, all my friends in America!" And then the voice broke into joyous baritone laughter.

"How are all you dear old boobs who have been telling one another for a month that I have gone dotty about Russia?" I suspect that the gentlemen of the press who took exception, editorially, to Mr. Shaw's phrasing and attitude must have read the speech in cold type. Certainly, there was nothing to be offended at in the gay warmth of his voice, nor at his taking a leaf out of the American dictionary and addressing us by our own favorite epithet.

His whole attitude was that of a man who has been backing a dark horse all his life, taking in good part the joshings of the young wise-heimers who have been playing the favorites.

Favorites Sometimes Fail

Now in a crucial race he sees the favorites left at the post, tangled in the start, bucking and kicking and unseating their jockeys, while the dark horse goes striding down the track, seemingly safe at the first quarter, as even the disgruntled backers of the favorites must admit.

And the old fan who has never hedged on a bet naturally lets out a whoop as he sees a chance to clean up on a lifelong faith.

That strikes me as the spirit in which Shaw addressed us on Sunday. He was happy, he was jolly, and he was joshing the pants off us.

I once saw something like that right here in Boston. It was at an annual Phi Beta Kappa dinner at Harvard during the war years. The speaker was Barrett Wendell, then retired, pretty near the end of his career. His address was intended to remind his fellow-scholars that for years they had been backing the wrong horse. All his life Barrett Wendell had stood out against the German theory of scholarship which for the past generation had dominated the American universities. He had stood aloof from the conception of scholarship which led in only one direction, to the German Ph. D. He had stood for the English theory and the French.

Now in the midst of a national atmosphere which made all German methods suspicious, he let loose that queer, cracked, up-and-down voice of his in a jovial taunting of his scholastic colleagues, who had had things all their own way for so many years and were now the recognized champions of a system at which America was looking decidedly askance.

Workers' Parade Significant

Even while Shaw was speaking, although he did not mention it, some 100,000 of the civil service employes of the British government were parading with their wives and children, protesting against their wage cuts. One can think of no class so traditionally associated with the old conservative solidity of the British government and social system as the British civil service. That parade of theirs yesterday is perhaps quite as significant as the recent bloodless mutiny of the British fleet. And in the same column the news came that Ramsay MacDonald, representing the national "coalition," faces the fight of his life in his own constituency. If the next Parliament has a preponderant Labor majority, we shall see strange things happening in England.

For over 40 years of activity in the public eye Mr. Shaw has been the rarest of birds, a perfectly consistent man. He has taken care to get as much money as he can out of the existing capitalist system, and he has never ceased to advocate a social system which would make it impossible for him to continue doing so. No one but a fool would have done otherwise in the first instance; no one but an idealist would have done as he did in the second. Chesterton says somewhat that the saints are to be recognized by their combination of unerring practical wisdom and undeviating devotion to the pursuit of truth. And Shaw himself has said that the chief characteristic of a saint is that he (or she) never ceases to make himself a nuisance to his fellow-man for the sake of an ideal.

For Thin-Skinned Gentlemen

The gentlemen who are so thin-skinned that they can't bear to be referred to, even jovially, as boobs had better first reread the last scene of "St. Joan" and then take a walk out to Commonwealth ave. and take a look at the statue of William Lloyd Garrison, whom the "broadcloth mob" dragged through the streets of Boston with a rope around his neck.

Years ago Shaw said: "People tell me that Capitalism may not be a perfect system, but at least it works! All I have to reply is that it may be an absolutely perfect system theoretically, for all I care, but that demonstrably it does not work!"

Yesterday's speech was devoted to an elaboration of that idea in the light of recent events. Like an old Bryanite who preached bi-metallism in 1896 and never quite gave up hope, he was saying "I told you so." Hence the explosive gayety, the over-emphasis, the brotherly chuckling of an older man who has seen the youngsters get themselves into difficulties.

One thing he said which no student of history can deny. He reminded us that back in 1776 the revolutionary proponents of a new era, Washington, Jefferson, Hamilton, Tom Paine, et al., were discussed by the royalists in exactly the terms the economic die-hards now apply to the leaders of the Russian movement.

Personally, our present American system has done too well by me for me ever to get very hot under the collar about it. But the idea for which Bernard Shaw is our greatest English-speaking spokesman is too important for the sort of peanut criticism which has become almost automatic with us at mention of his name. His ideas ought to be attacked seriously. But we are fools to get peeved at him personally. Still greater fools to make fun of him. Remember the story of Elisha and the bears!

COURT ACTION HELD UP FOR INQUEST

Students Are Told to Make No Talk to Antonellis About His Chum's Death

Court action in the case of Nunzio Antonellis of Brighton high school, who engaged in a fist fight with Charles Zentackos, a mate on the high school football squad, was deferred today in Brighton court until after the inquest into Zentacko's death.

Out of respect to the dead football player, Brighton High today indefinitely postponed its football game tomorrow with Hyde Park High.

Football practice this afternoon was cancelled, and in its stead, Headmaster Rich called an assembly of students and explained that the tragic death was an accident and asked that when Antonellis returns to school no mention be made of the death of his football mate.

Antonellis was excused from from school attendance today, as a result of his collapse yesterday while visiting the dead boy's motheer, and because his own mother is in bed, under a physician's care from shock brought on by the tragedy.

The Antonellis boy met the family of the dead youth on his second attempt. He had gone to the house Sunday, the day of the funeral, but was unable to face the ordeal, and sent in a bouquet he had brought with him.

Yesterday he went to the Zentackos' home at 15 Noanet st., South End, with his father and mother. As they entered his father and the father of the dead youth gripped hands and the youth silently grasped the hand of the bereaved father. The father explained the family felt no bitterness.

The dead boy's mother, ill before his sudden death, has since suffered a nervous collapse and was in a nearby bedroom. Young Antonellis embraced her, weeping and fell in a dead faint in her arms when she asked if her son had left any last message for her.

BOY'S CRIES TOO MUCH FOR JUDGE

Joseph Bruno, 5, struggled and cried so in federal court today that efforts to make him exhibit "A" in a $20,000 automobile damage suit, had to be abandoned. But a jury awarded him $900 from Max Shapiro, of New York, for injuries suffered near the boy's home in Hanover st., North End, April 15 last.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Mary Bruno, sought to comply with an order of Judge James M. Morton, Jr., that scars on the child's leg and chest be shown the jury, but Joseph vociferously refused to leave his father's arms. The suit was uncontested.

3 More Places to Sell Game Tickets

Three more offices for the sale of tickets for the Holy Cross-Boston College football game at Harvard Stadium on Thanksgiving Day for the benefit of the unemployed of Boston will be opened tomorrow.

A booth will be opened in Filene's with 5000 tickets on sale, and special booths will be opened in Foster's Ticket Agency at 232 Tremont st., and at Tyson's Ticket Agency, 229 Tremont st.

Peabody Men Held on Liquor Charges

Frank H. Dowst and George A. Lawrence, both of Peabody, were held in $1500 bail today in Federal court by U. S. Commissioner Edwin C. Jenney, charged with possessing 17 gallons of alleged liquor.

Dowst was held in bail of $500 and Lawrence in $1000, after pleading not guilyt to the charge. Their cases were continued until Oct. 21 for hearing.

The rest of $93,345, total price of the land, will be paid later.

DEATH PROVES VICTOR IN RACE

The spectacular mile-a-minute race of an ambulance from Salem to Boston last Sunday to save the life of Frank Tremblay, infantile paralysis victim, proved futile today. Tremblay, who at first was believed on his way to recovery, died in a respirator at Boston City Hospital.

Tremblay, the 20-year-old father of two children with whom he lived at 34 Ward st., Salem, was taken to the Salem Hospital Sunday morning. So rapidly did the paralysis develop that his only chance for life was seen in rushing him to a respirator in Boston that night.

Escorted in relays by motorcycle police of five cities through which it passed, an ambulance whirled him the 20 miles between the hospitals in approximately 20 minutes.

E. I. JACKSON DEAD AT 67

Ernest I. Jackson, 67, of 41 Parkman st., Dorchester, a retired Boston newspaperman, died today at Commonwealth Avenue Hospital after an operation.

The funeral will be at 2 p. m. Thursday from his late residence with the Rev. Daniel A. Thurston of the Parkman M. E. Church, Dorchester, officiating. Burial will be in Forest Hills Cemetery.

Mr. Jackson was born in Jefferson, Me., and after being educated in the public schools of that state removed to Massachusetts.

Coming to Boston as a reporter on the Boston Evening American he worked on this newspaper for five years and then spent 15 years on the staff of the Boston Post.

Besides his wife, Isabelle, one son, Byron S. Jackson of Newtonville, and a daughter, Mrs. Gertrude Rhoades of Weston, survive.

Watch Your Step on the Way Out! Only Two Exits, Says Sister Aimee

Life's Roads All Meet at One End, With No Detours, Says Evangelist

Aimee McPherson Hutton

Sinners or saints, we are all in one class or the other. As I face these thousands of men and women in Boston each night the thought continually comes to me: You and you, each one is walking his or her little walk along the paths of life.

There are one hundred exits to this great amphitheater in which I speak. If danger theatened thousands of people could march out in orderly array to safety. But at the ends of our walks through life there are only two exits. Just two ways out for any of us, and the exits are the doors to Heaven on one side and Hell on the other.

There are two classes of us, the saved and the lost. The sinners go through one door, the saints through another.

That's simple, so simple that the veriest child can understand it. Yet throughout the land there are those who walk their paths as though they are blind to this simple fact.

NO DETOURS THERE

There will be no rich, no poor, when those doors are opened. When we step through those exits we carry no worldly pelf, no material tinsel with which many have decked their petty selves along the broad ways and country lanes of life. No rich man drives through those doors with his liveried chauffeur at the wheel of his high powered car. No poor man's eye is filled with the dust of speeding wheels passing by.

Saints or sinners, saved or lost, rich or poor, all of you have friends and acquaintances, playmates and playthings. But when you go through those doors the playmates and the playthings are left behind and there are no detours!

The smartest stock salesman from Wall st. won't talk his way through the exit he doesn't deserve. The wealthiest of the unsaved will find his tips and bribes unavailing.

What are you waiting for? Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, today and forever. What more do we need to know?

ONE DOOR IS GOOD

Do you still want to walk your little streets, your bypaths or your broad ways which lead to one exit or the other.

Is the one you now tread the one which leads to the door you wish to enter?

If it isn't, what are you waiting for?

That's how I feel as I preach each night in Boston. And I have in mind those 500 faithfuls who every minute of every day pray constantly in the Boston Watch Tower at Angelus Temple while I am here trying to give the message which they out there have already heard and heeded.

Feels All Right

Venice sat with her sheer stocking in one hand and that look of misery in her eyes which annoyed her mother so frequently.

"No, I feel all right," she said. "But it's the same old thing. Why should I go? I never have a good time."

"It's your own fault. Why shouldn't you have a good time? You're unusual looking, you have pretty clothes and a pretty figure.

STATE SHUTS UP REVERE TRUST

The Revere Trust Co., at North Shore rd. and Beach st., Revere, was closed today by Bank Commissioner Arthur Guy as the result of a run which started on the bank Thursday and which grew in proportions through Saturday.

Although a throng of depositors gathered at the bank today when word of the closing spread, there was no disorder and the majority of the depositors expressed confidence that the bank was solvent and their money was tied up only temporarily.

This was borne out indirectly in a statement issued by Bank Commissioner Guy, which read:

"Recent heavy withdrawals have so depleted the cash reserve of the Revere Trust Company as to render continuation of the business unsafe and unsound.

$1,500,000 IN JULY

"Therefore, to protect the depositors and conserve the assets, I have today taken possession of the business affairs of the company.

"As of July 30, 1931, the total deposits of the commercial department were approximately $600,000, and the total deposits of the savings department were approximately $900,000.

"There are 1100 commercial accounts and 4660 savings accounts. The Revere Trust Company is not connected with any other banking institution in the Commonwealth."

Included in the bank's deposits is approximately $61,000 of State funds, according to State Treasurer Charles F. Hurley.

EXAMINERS AT WORK

Officers of the bank are Joshua Harron, president, and John J. Hurley, treasurer. With them on the board of directors are Rep. Augustine Airola, M. J. Cougherty, J. M. Curley, clerk of Chelsea court, A. F. Gardella, L. J. Louis, T. J. Murray and M. J. Porcella.

MINISTER ACTS TO BREAK UP WEDDING

Bride of Peculis Warned He Was Insane Patient; Earns $5 a Week and Has $3000

Asserting his right as the legal guardian of Constantine Peculis of Hyde Park, mentally defective war veteran, the Rev. Charles S. Bodwell of the Watch and Ward Society today moved to have annulled Peculis' marriage yesterday to the former Mary Russo of Fairmount ave., Hyde Park.

The clergyman's action followed his vain attempt yesterday, with the aid of city officials, to stop the wedding ceremony which was performed at the Church of the Most Precious Blood, Hyde Park, by the Rev. Robert Manning and celebrated with a big reception last night at the home of the bride's parents.

SAYS MAN WAS AFRAID

"I am going to ask the aid of the regional attorney of the United States Veterans' Bureau in having the marriage annulled," Bodwell said today. "I expect a fight as I understand the girl's family have retained counsel to block any attempt at dissolution of the union.

"Peculis was in my office this morning. He broke down and cried, and said he was getting married when he didn't want to.

"Both he and Miss Russo were in my office about three weeks ago, said they wanted to get married and asked my advice.

"I told them it would be against the law, because Peculis was adjudged insane in 1923 in Lawrence probate court by Judge Dow following Peculis' attempt at suicide by drinking poison.

"He tried to kill himself at that time because a Red Cross nurse in Lawrence had refused to marry him.

"I was appointed his guardian on the recommendation of the Red Cross."

EARNS $5 A WEEK; HAS $3000

Peculis and his bride are living at the Russo home, 165 Fairmount st. According to Mr. Bodwell the bridegroom is a dishwasher in a downtown restaurant at $5 a week, but has accumulated a bank account of about $3000 from governmental allowances on his mental disability.

A rumor spread that the couple had been married in spite of an order issued by City Registrar James J. Mulvey cancelling the license, but the newlyweds denied that they had received any such order.

Mulvey admitted, however, that he recalled the license after it had been issued but he could not say if his recall notice had reached the couple before the ceremony.

He said that the marriage intentions were filed by the couple on Sept. 17 in the usual manner and that the license was issued on the [illegible] after the five day statutory period had elapsed.

It was not until last Friday, he said, that he learned of any complaint that the war veteran was mentally incapacitated and then it came from the Rev. Mr. Bodwell, who called at the office in City Hall to stop the wedding.

REVERE TRUST CLOSES DOORS

[illegible] commissioner's [illegible] notice had been affixed to the doors, declared he would have a statement to make later in the day.

As the throng of more than 200 depositors stood outside the bank they could see inside a number of State bank examiners working on the books.

Three policemen were all that were necessary to keep the street corner cleared for traffic and only occasionally was there an indication of worry on the part of a depositor.

BOY'S BIRTHDAY CASH

Robert Solomon, 13, of Walnut st., Revere, was one of the discomforted ones. He received a total of $27.50 in cash gifts for his birthday recently and his grandmother, Mrs. Annie Solomon of the same address, had deposited the money in the bank for him.

Miss Catherine Cassidy of North Shore rd. had with her a bankbook showing deposits of $3500, but the majority of the depositors had only a few hundred dollars each tied up.

Some of the worried depositors were persons who had joined the bank's "Tax Club," patterned on the Christmas and Vacation Clubs. Some checks in this club were mailed out to members last week.

The Revere Trust Co. has been doing business for about 20 years and until this year usually paid a dividend of eight per cent to stockholders. This year's dividend was six per cent.

Protest against closing of the bank was made to Gov. Ely by Rep. C. F. Nelson Pratt of Saugus and Thomas F. Carr[illegible] of Revere, but the governor declined to issue a statement of any kind on the closing.

Laundry Man Hurled Out Window in Blast

Although he was seriously injured last night when he was blown through a window in an explosion, Hom Paf, proprietor of a laundry at 26 School st., Quincy, begged to be allowed to collect his scattered laundry before going to the Quincy Hospital.

Paf's request was denied. The blast blew all the windows from the building.

Bomb Blasts Part of Holiday Fete

An explosion brought police on the run to Endicott street last night and resulted in the arrest of Raphael Colarusso, 48, of 95 North Margin st., on the charge of drunkenness. Colarusso was celebrating Columbus Day with bombs 15 inches in length and about four and one half inches in diameter.

100 ON STRIKE IN STOUGHTON

More than 100 women and girl employes of the Panther Rubber Co. at Stoughton walked out today in protest at a wage cut.

Men workers, numbering approximately 200, who were also cut, continued at work but petitioned for an adjustment.

The women workers claim they were cut from $11.05 a week to $9.63 with other reductions in the piecework rates.

The reductions were announced Saturday. They went to work today but quit after a committee was informed by the management that the new scale must be adhered to. There will be another conference later with officials of the company.

WIFE MADE 'EVERY HOME A HELL,' HE SAYS

Bashful Girl

By HARRIET HENRY

of the girls in circulation. I—I—don't know what it is."

"[illegible] she thought [illegible] sticks at inopportune moments. I never can open it quickly enough to show the entertaining things inside."

"You must cultivate small talk, Venice."

"It's not natural to me, Mother."

"Then effect it. Come along, Venice. Put on those new brocaded slippers and the yellow dress."

There was a [illegible] battle. Mrs. Muir won.

Venice got [illegible] to her [illegible]. Twenty minutes later she stood before her dressing table, a [illegible] figure in long [illegible] honey-colored satin [illegible] at her [illegible] and throat. Her [illegible] hair gleamed lustrous as the satin of her frock. The pallor of her face was startling as the flesh tint of certain old masters. It belonged to an aesthetic age. Venice turned [illegible] before [illegible].

"My dress should be cut to the waist in the back," she said. "It's not being cut quite low enough spoils all the smartness."

"Nonsense, my dear. Do you want to ape the musical comedy stage?"

"Why not? The stage gets its clothes from the best French dressmakers. Most of the girls we know have their necks cut daringly."

"They need sensational touches to commend them. You have your breeding."

Looks Lovely

Venice reflected that a young man at a dance did not pursue [illegible] for your family tree.

"You look lovely, dear," said Mrs. Muir. She went and kissed her. She never meant to be unkind. It was all for Venice's good.

Venice [illegible] followed by Nora climbed [illegible] into a taxi. The maid was to be left at the Goadbys' front door.

It was a big white stone house in the East Seventies. Lights glowed warmly from behind every shaded window and a line of cars stood along the curb outside. A butler admitted her to a wave of warm scented air.

Venice climbed the broad stairway to leave her wrap with innumerable others in Lola Goadby's room. Her eye caught with quick pleasure the lovely mass of color, lumbered brocade and velvet and fur made on the bed. Ruby and jade and ebony, silver and bronze and gold. She repowdered her nose, gave herself another penciling of lipstick and then went [illegible] down the stairs. She stood nervously at the foot staring into the big room where the dancing was in gay and noisy sway.

"Hello, Venice."

It was Jerry Ward, one of the young men who had always been courteous in passing.

"Hello," echoed Venice. Here's my chance, she thought, to say something amusing that will make him want to stay. "I—I—"

He was gone.

Embarrassed

She took a tentative step nearer the ballroom. Couples foxtrotted by. One or two waved to her. Color crept into her face at the pained embarrassment of the standing alone. Suddenly Lola Goadby saw her. With the exception of Nelly Spalding, Lola was Venice's only really intimate friend. She was blonde, [illegible]-nosed, brown-eyed, eager, effervescent. She broke from her partner, dancing and dragging him through the band, threaded her way to Venice.

"Hello, darling. You're late."

"I know. I almost didn't come."

"Same old reason, I suppose. Well, not at my party, Venice. This is Miss Muir, Mr. Reese." Lola deliberately went away and left them together.

"How do you do?" said Venice, holding out a hand. She had a firm strong clasp like a boy that was always surprising people. It didn't belong to a limp girl with fragile skin and soft grave eyes.

He was a handsome youth. Black polished hair, sleek as a patent leather [illegible] upon his head, laughing brown eyes, weak pretty mouth.

"Ah," he smiled, shaking her hand and not noticing that surprising grip of hers, "you have a lover in the offing who detains you."

"No, I didn't want to come and my mother made me." Why had she said that? It was so flat and uncompromising and final. "What ho!" she added desperately.

Although tardily it worked. The "what ho" made the young man think it had been an artful fib.

"Let's dance," he said and Venice slipped out on to the floor with him.

Loses Chance

She danced well. He did not apparently want to talk so she happily gave herself up to the rhythm and they glided to and fro this way and that together. The music stopped. Venice looked anxiously about. Was young Reese going to be stuck with her? This fear made her nervous, tongue-tied.

"Do you like to read?" she finally managed.

They started dancing again. She loved to read. If some one would talk books to her she could be conversational all night.

"Not in the evening," he said.

Here was her chance for humorous repartee. She couldn't. Nothing amusing would come into her head. Silence.

"You dance well," he murmured.

"Thank you," said Venice.

Again silence. It pressed down on her as heavily as a tangible weight. Around and around. Partnerless men came from out the [illegible] line and danced with other girls. Venice and young Reese went on and on. She began to dance badly through her misery. She could not concentrate on dancing when she was trying to concentrate on a tactful manner of helping him to be rid of her. I can go to the dressing room, she thought. The dance seemed endless.

"Here you are." It was Lola interrupting with a new young man. "This is Miss Muir, Mr. Parker. You know Donny Reese, Ted."

Venice went off in the arms of Mr. Parker. He was a fat and perspiring youth who blew in her ear as they danced and pumped her arm up and down like some [illegible] steady rotation. She could feel her hair at one side getting [illegible]. It irritated her. But [illegible] a new partner. Wallflowers cannot be choosers. The saxophone [illegible]. He's laughing at me, went her thoughts. And then she saw an [illegible] gentleman who [illegible] mother. She gave him her [illegible] smile. Could she have but realized it was the sort of smile she should have been [illegible] younger men [illegible].

Make Her Shy

"Will you dance with an octogenarian, Venice?"

"No, but I'll dance with you, Mr. Partridge."

Was conduct [illegible]. It made her self [illegible] strangely ill at ease. She felt they knew her lack [illegible] froze her. Once [illegible] for what she was worth.

Mr. Partridge took her out to an adjoining room for some punch and they sat in a bay window alcove and chatting Venice began to have a lovely time. This was no effort. She was simply being herself. Mr. Partridge had read Cakes and Ale and liked it as much as she did. She thought Louis Bromfield [illegible]. He disagreed. They had a [illegible] and stimulating argument.

Lola wandered up with Jerry Ward and joined them on the broad window seat. The punch helped. It gave her the courage to momentarily rest a careless hand on Jerry's arm the way Lola did and to lean across Mr. Partridge to look him in the eyes without remembering to feel foolish. She managed two funny stories. She forgot to wonder if Jerry was mentally examining her. She was about to have her glass refilled when he asked her to dance.

An Automaton

It was too bad. The warm glow was not firmly enough established within her. It faded quickly and she and Jerry were going around and around indefinitely. She became a nervous automaton again, desperately hoping to capture another partner. Her eyes slid anxiously about the room examining this girl and that in an effort to discover how they did it. Beatrix Haskell's head was pressed tight against her partner's shoulder, her eyes closed. No man had ever looked so soulfully contented when dancing with Venice.

Doris Norton was laughing up into her young man's face with a merry sort of abandon. Before the laugh had faded on her lips another partner had claimed her. Alice Schuyler was whispering as she danced. Betty Paine was melted into her partner.

They appeared as one form swaying slowly, tensely. Someone came to pry them loose. Immediately Betty was fused into another dinner jacket with all the closeness and intimacy of the first. Half around the room and another young man demanded her.

But I couldn't dance like that, thought Venice. I'd die of embarrassment if I tried. She suddenly attempted to press herself closer to Jerry and raised her face to his with that secret look of Alice Schuyler's.

How does the evening end? Venice considers a new plan in the next installment.

JAMESON FLED HOUSE TO PLAY 'SOLITAIRE'

Marlboro Man Says He Found His Only Solace in Police Station Guardroom

MADE HOME A 'HELL'

"I was attending Tufts College Engineering School when I met my wife in 1912," testified Jameson. "I left college in April 1914 to marry her and we went to live in Marlboro.

"Two years later we moved to Brighton because my wife was having constant fits of hysteria, screaming and yelling, and it was necessary to get her away from where I was doing business.

"Then we started on to Newton, and we had to leave there because she was constantly cursing and swearing at night. She didn't like the house. So in 1923, we were back in Marlboro but this time on the outskirts of the city.

"I told her she had made every home a hell and that if she made this house a hell she would have to stay there anyway, because I would never move again on that account.

"She began with her outbursts almost immediately.

PLAYED SOLITAIRE

"She would often jump out of bed at night and run around before the children with hardly anything on, and cursing and swearing. She would break glass, too, and hit me.

"She accused me of going out with other women but she only did this when police had come to the house in answer to my summons.

"I was obliged to leave the house night after night to get some sleep so I could stand up to my work the next day. Sometimes I went to a hotel, sometimes to my office, often to the police station where I would sit and play solitaire in the guardroom."

GILBERT AND SULLIVAN STARS SCORE AGAIN

Milton Aborn's Troupers Present "Iolanthe" as Their Final Offering

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

For its final week at Gilbert and Sullivan at the Colonial, Milton Aborn's [illegible] troupers last evening brought forward "Iolanthe," which, if not the most tuneful of the current repertoire is certainly the most fanciful. Nor is it lacking in that stinging satire which made the two boys famous 50 years ago [illegible] in [illegible] esteem.

Maybe Irving Thalberg will be kind hearted and let Jimmy Durante play a part in "As You Desire Me," Greta Garbo's next picture. Jimmy has lamented to all that listen that he hasn't met the gracious Garbo. He confided that his main reason for going to Hollywood was to play opposite her. Gene Markey, Hollywood's most famous man-about-town, is writing the adaptation and dialogue for "As You Desire Me," which is a Pirandello play.

When You

CAN'T QUIT

Fatigue is the signal to rest. Obey it if you can. When you can't, keep cool and carry-on in comfort!

Bayer Aspirin was meant for just such times, for it insures your comfort. Freedom from those pains that nag at nerves and wear you down. One tablet will block that threatening headache while it is still just a threat. Take two or three tablets when you've caught a cold, and that's usually the end of it.

Carry Bayer Aspirin when you travel. Have some at home and keep some at the office. Like an efficient secretary, it will often "save the day" and spare you many uncomfortable hours. Perfectly harmless, so keep it handy, keep it in mind and use it. No man of affairs can afford to ignore the score and more of uses explained in the proven directions. From a grumbling tooth to those rheumatic pains which seem almost to bend the bones, Bayer Aspirin is ready with its quick relief—and always works. Neuralgia. Neuritis. Any nagging, needless pain.

Get the genuine tablets stamped with the Bayer cross. They are of perfect purity, absolute uniformity, and have the same action every time. Why experiment with imitations costing a few cents less? The saving is too little. There's too much at stake. But there is economy in the purchase of genuine Bayer Aspirin tablets in the large bottles.

SAFEST SIDE IN A LOVERS' QUARREL IS OUTSIDE

By HELEN ROWLAND

MACHINE-AGE PHILOSOPHY

The two chief causes of divorce, these days, are a woman's longing for more clothes to show off IN, and a man's longing for more women to show off TO.

HELEN ROWLAND

The meanest thing a woman can do to a philandering husband, is to loose him from the legal safety-catch, and leave him free to get tangled up with all the women to whom he enjoyed making love, while under the protecting wing of matrimony.

[illegible]

* * *

* * *

There may be more dust and cobwebs around the modern wife's house than there were around her grandmother's; but there are also more places where a man can put his feet, throw his cigar ashes, and spill his drinks—and he doesn't have to go out back of the barn to do his smoking and swearing.

* * *

Nothing hurts a woman's vanity so much or makes her so sore, as to have you agree with her that the man she happened to marry is the "brute" or the "oil-can" she just finished saying he was.

Shot Fired By Albert In Cafe

TJADEN IS celebrating his marriage to the horse butcher. The business has developed into a perfect gold mine.

[illegible] when we [illegible] the Cafe [illegible]

"That's all shut down long since," says Willy.

"We can get in around the back," persists Albert. "Karl knows how."

[illegible] of us have any [illegible] to go now, but Albert [illegible] that at last we give [illegible] surprises me rather [illegible] Albert is the first to want to go home.

We find seats for ourselves [illegible] front. The cafe [illegible]

"That's just hot-air business! Somebody has heard tell of something or other, a second passes it on, a third interests a fourth, they run up and down and make a great deal of fuss, but there's seldom anything in reality. They're just the hangers-on, who will be happy if they can pick up a little commission by the way. The real profiteer captains deal only with one or at most two middlemen, whom they know at first hand. That fat chap over there, for instance, bought two truckloads of eggs in Poland yesterday. At the moment, they're ostensibly on their way to Holland, so I'm told; they'll be labeled afresh en route, and then come back again to be sold as Dutch new-laid eggs at three times the price."

"And it's for these swine we have to go around with a bellyache!" growls Willy.

"I say! Just look. There comes Arthur!" cries Willy, laughing.

He sa[illegible] "S[illegible] Ledderh[illegible] cannot [illegible] showing [illegible] here [illegible] big [illegible] conic [illegible]

With an occasional glance Arthur reassures himself every now and then that we are also listening.

But Albert is going along the cubicles. Someone has said something to him that he cannot believe, but which, for all that has stuck in his brain all the day like a thorn. When he peers through a chink into the last cubicle but one, it is as if an immense dagger were suddenly descending upon him. He reels a moment, then he rips the curtain aside.

On the table are champagne glasses and beside them a bouquet of roses. The tablecloth is awry and hanging half on the floor. Beyond the table a fair-haired person is curled on a settle. Her clothing is in disarray, her hair disheveled. The girl's back is toward Albert and she hums a tune as she combs her hair before a little mirror.

"Luccie," says Albert hoarsely.

She swings around and stares at him as if he were a ghost. She tries desperately to smile, but as she sees Albert's gaze fixed on her, the twitching dies in her face. It is no use lying now. Frightened, she pushes in behind the settle.

"Albert—it wasn't my fault—" she stammers; "he, it was he—" Then all at once she gabbles quickly: "He made me drunk, Albert, and he kept on giving me more. Albert, I swear."

Albert does not answer.

"What's the meaning of this?" demands someone behind him.

Bartscher stands there swaying slightly to and fro. He blows the smoke of his cigar into Albert's face.

"Pimping, eh? Be off with you! Clear out!"

For a moment Albert stands there dumbly before him. Then suddenly, with awful vividness, the protruding belly, the brown check suit, the gold watch chain and the wide red face of the other man stamps itself into his brain.

At that moment Willy looks [illegible] from our table. He [illegible] and tears down the [illegible] too late. Before he [illegible] Albert has drawn his [illegible] revolver and fired. We dash [illegible]

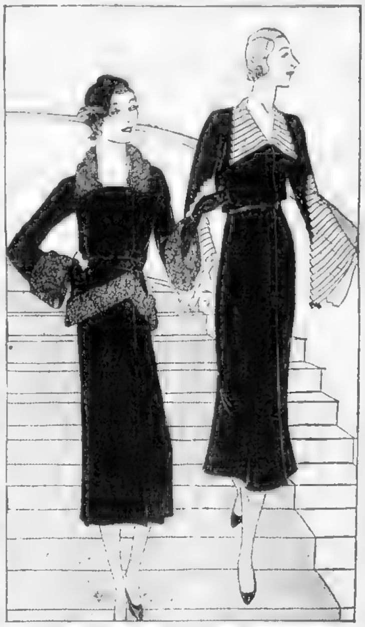
A WORTH SUGGESTION

Ensembles in Fancy Weave

SKETCHED IN PARIS



The newer ensembles in Worth's winter collection consist of short jackets over woolen frocks of the same fabric. These two figures show one of these ensembles done in a fancy-weave black woolen [illegible] and rather pully in texture. The little belted coat is trimmed with astrakhan and fastens with fancy black and silver buttons.

The dress, of the same material as the coat, has a wide collar and even wider [illegible] cuffs done in white crepe morocain, cut in horizontal bands and stitched edge to edge. The cuffs reach up well above the elbow in front and are appliqued in a diagonal line. Fancy black and silver buttons close the frock in front, even to the wrap-over skirt. There is a narrow belt of red grosgrain ribbon tying in a neat little bow.

Praying for the Young Men Who Have Wandered

By WINIFRED BLACK

THERE WAS delicate gray mist in the air.

The ancient trees were like embroidered phantoms as they stood there along the little country lane that led to the tiny little chapel half hidden in a wild glen that gave suddenly to the sounding sea.

Winifred Black

We walked through the old graveyard to the chapel. How old they used to be, the people in these quiet parts.

There's a man who died at 110 and his age is set forth fairly on a straight and sturdy stone.

Next to him lies a man of 103.

The little chapel has stood in this glen for 600 years, and some say that before that St. Paul himself landed in the cove and preached the first Christian sermon ever heard in Great Britain.

Hark, how the chimes are ringing. The sexton, they tell us, is 80 years old and never misses a chance to ring those chimes.

Here they come, the villagers, by twos and threes, until there is quite a goodly company in the ancient little chapel.

The Vicar half sings, half speaks the service.

Outside the birds are singing their good night song. The wind rises and the place grows so dim we can hardly see the face of the kindly old Vicar as he stands in his pulpit and says a few kindly earnest words before sending his people home to the firelight and tea.

Before he goes he bows his head and prays for the young men and women of the Parish that have gone out into the world to live among strangers.

He asks that they be protected and cared for, and that some day they may come home again out of the great, cold, heartless world, home to the gray little glen, by the wild sea, where the tall trees sway to the western winds, and the very air is full of old tales and ancient legends.

What a beautiful idea.

I can just see some lonely boy or some heartsick girl up there in London looking at the time from a garret window and saying softly:

"It's seven o'clock. They'll be praying for me in the little chapel at home, just now."

I wish we'd pray for our boys and girls at home in America, our cities are too full of young, eager, hopeful boys, and tender-hearted, soft-eyed girls who are trying so hard to make their way in the world.

We ought to help them every way we can, we elders.

Help them with kindness and understanding, and sympathy—and maybe a prayer or two wouldn't hurt them, either.

Charm Lies in Beauty of Eyes

By MISS HUDDLESTON.

SURVEYING the field of cosmetics I find an increasing number of preparations for beautifying the eyes and their surrounding [illegible]

Josephine Huddleston

[illegible] long been used as a preventive for wrinkling [illegible] lines around the eyes [illegible] the beauty [illegible] several [illegible] creams [illegible] made their appearance [illegible] the regular use of these creams [illegible]

[illegible] crow's feet that [illegible] of the eyes as well as eyes that have become [illegible] respond [illegible] to these creams [illegible] by all means if one [illegible] concerned with preserving or restoring the beauty of [illegible] these creams must not be overlooked.

Other preparations promise to promote the growth of the lashes, but here the manufacturers have warned us not to expect too much. Nature intended our lashes to reach a certain length, then stop growing, so these creams promise nothing more than to promote the lashes to their full length, and when that is reached this continued use will do nothing more than thicken the growth and prevent falling out.

The use of liquid eyelash dye is not entirely new, but I can't help [illegible] how luxurious the lashes look when each hair is individually dyed with such darkener that don't rub or run off.

Eye shading, too, comes in for its rightful share of recognition, for the evening makeup seems incomplete without this all important eye beautifier. After experimenting extensively with eye shadows, I find that there doesn't seem to be any real don't as to their use. The individual simply must try out the various hues—black, blue, brown, green, gray, lavender, gold, and silver, then use the one that blends or harmonizes with the general makeup or coloring.

Should Keep Love of Son

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I should like to ask you a question. My son is 20 years old and has two more years before finishing college. He is going with a gentile girl and we are Jewish. I am quite disappointed, as I had always wished my daughter and son to marry in our own religion.

R. W.

Dear R. W.—Questions of religion are better left to one's own conscience and it is impossible for me to decide such matters. At the same time you must know from experience that there is no more certain way of hurrying a marriage than by opposing it. You are very wise to agree to receive the young lady, because that does away with the idea that you are being unfriendly toward her.

Do not, whatever happens, lose the affection of your son. After bearing a child, and making as many sacrifices as a mother has to make, it is too bad to have the tie broken.

Daily True Story

A Bird in the Hand

WHEN JETH Wickham mounted the brownstone steps of the apartment building on Charles st. the girl who lived in the studio across the hall was just ahead of him, her key in the door. She was an extremely pretty blonde girl, and the card on the letter box said Jean Kaler. Her arms were filled with paper bags from the pushcarts of Bleecker st. and she balanced them precariously, her cheeks pink with the cold air, her eyes bright.

Gallantly Jeth shoved open the door for her and the bags fell from her arms in a cascade. [illegible]

When he was ahead [illegible] his own [illegible] open and [illegible] Jean [illegible]

A VALIANT BATTLE

Jeth Wickham was a coward about pretty girls [illegible] were his weakness. He had been engaged half a dozen times and [illegible] two of his attempts to get out of engagements [illegible]

[illegible] with an [illegible] in the Graybar [illegible] He liked the work. He [illegible] home to his big comfortable studio and sit in front of the fire with a book. He liked to invite in a bunch of fellows once or twice a week for a poker party. Some day he meant to write a text book on the technique of radio advertising and make a big name for himself. And he didn't want to get engaged to another girl.

Through the winter he avoided Jean Kaler very successfully, though sometimes as he sat with his book before his fire he [illegible] long to [illegible] of her. She was an artist he knew. He could picture her just across the hall, under the same roof, painting perhaps or curled up with another book. She would look mighty pretty in a soft negligee curled up by her fire . . . maybe thinking of him!

The weather turned mild with spring. Jeth kept his windows open and the breeze blew in off the river. The muffled hooting of whistles was dreamy and romantic.

A CALL FOR HELP

One midnight there was a timid knocking at his door. When he opened it she was there in a soft pretty robe as he had so often pictured her.

She turned a worried woebegone little face up to his. "A canary got into my room!" Jeth gaped at her.

"It flew in the open window. It's terrified, poor little thing. I tried to catch it but I can't. Oh, I'm afraid it's going to smash into something and hurt itself."

In his shirt sleeves Jeth darted across the hall to her studio. A chair was overturned, a palette lay on the floor, the table cloth was pulled half off the table and dishes were scattered.

He discovered the painty palette by stepping in it and sitting down violently.

The lost canary, a tiny yellow mite, was fluttering wildly on the ceiling, beating itself against the walls, blundering in terror.

"It's got out of somebody's apartment," Jean cried, wringing her hands, "please, please do something."

Jeth scraped himself off the palette, put a chair on top the table, took a scarf and tried to catch the bird in its folds. That didn't work.

He tried to frighten the bird into Jean's reach and she knocked over a modeling stand, but didn't catch it.

END OF THE CHASE

Then he had an idea. He had her turn off the ceiling lights that attracted the bird and leave only a bridge lamp on. The canary fluttered toward it and he caught it.

But he knocked over the bridge lamp in his plunge. There was a sputter of blue flame, then darkness. A fuse had blown.

Jean lighted candles, emptied a new hat out of its cardboard box, poked holes to ventilate and shut the canary in. She helped Jeth scrape the worst of the paint off and they sat down breathless to enjoy ginger ale provided from her ice box.

It was then that an angry janitor demanded admittance. One [illegible] a wrecked apartment, a flushed and disheveled young man, a girl and drinks on the table.

Even the evidence of the canary in its box went for nothing. His ultimatum was swift and final.

Jeth left Jean at the Martha Washington for the night. They breakfasted together the next morning after feeding the canary. [illegible] went out together to look for new lodgings and after a week Jeth persuaded Jean that it would be a lot cheaper if they married and shared one all together.

Though they advertised extensively, nobody appeared to claim the canary.

"That's funny," Jeth mused. "You'd think anybody would want to keep a good singer like that."

Six months later Jeth and Jean met a man peddling canaries on the street. He started to show his wares, then he smiled.

"Oh, sure! You're the lady that bought a canary from me last April! How is the little feller getting along, ma'am?"

Jeth confronted his wife. "Just when last spring did you buy a canary?" he demanded.

"I can tell you exactly," she laughed. "A few hours before I turned him loose in my apartment that night. A girl has got to do something when she happens to love a man like you."

Fashion Note

AN ELEGANT ENTRY into the realm of fashion is the coat of navy blue sheer wool with a dress of blue and white printed silk. The dress has wide, rippling revers that are worn jabot fashion on the coat, which has three-quarters sleeves that permit the cuffs of the dress to show.

Sanitary Risk

in carelessly-made substitutes for Kotex

SAFETY should be your first concern in sanitary protection. Health safety. The kind of safety you are certain of in Kotex, the pad that is used in leading hospitals.

But how about those nameless substitutes, of whose makers you know nothing? What assurance have you of their sanitary safety? Who made them? Where? How? Are you sure you'd use them, if you knew their origin?

There's one certain way of avoiding risk. Ask for Kotex. When buying sanitary pads already wrapped, ask the clerk, "Is this real Kotex?" Thus be sure you are getting no inferior substitute.

Kotex is splendidly comfortable. It may be worn with perfect safety on either side. Soft, filmy layers make adjustment easy. Treated to deodorize. Readily disposable.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

FANNING

—By GEORGE UNDERWOOD—

Primo, One Tough Wop! ↕ Saturday's Conflicts.
Truth About Yudicky. Schaaf's Next Fight.
Yesterday's Football. Those Nice H. C. Boys.

WHAT HAPPENED ON ROAD TO KEENE!

Jack socked him in the kisser and bashed him on the beak
And blasted his mid-section 'till ribs did crack and creak
But battered, bruised and bloody, Big Primo wouldn't flop
And experts e'en agree that, Carnera's one tough Wop

Viewing last night's Sharkey-Carnera embroglio from [illegible] miles away through the medium of three ringside experts who couldn't seem to agree on just what was happening, we'll doff our chapeau to the loser as well as the winner. That Carnera [illegible] certainly is one tough Wop! There was no shackles on Jack Sharkey, last night. The Garrulous Gob gave the Man Mountain everything he had and gave it to him for 15 rounds. Carnera [illegible] standing in his brogans and taking it at the final bell [illegible] Sharkey had little difficulty hitting Carnera and Mister Sharkey was on business bent. We doubt if there is another man in the ring that could have stood up under the battering Carnera received from Sharkey's batteries, last night. What a fighter that Carnera pusson would have made if they had got the giant in his teens and taught him something about the art of scrambling ears!

When Stan Yudicky was carried off the field in the Holy Cross game last Saturday, the impression was that the Dartmouth captain's "bad leg" had gone back on him again. But such was not the case. It was the left leg, his "good one" that was injured. We should know for we stood over him in the dressing room while Trainer Harry Hillman was putting it in bandages. Dartmouth needs Yudicky badly. The Big Green team was weak on both flanks Saturday

STAN YUDICKY

Two ends like Collucci and Cavalcri of Holy Cross would make almost any opposing flank guardians look weak. There isn't a better pair of ends on the Eastern gridiron Besides two great ends Holy Cross has a great quarterback in Phil O'Connell. The Purple's best broken field runner, Rovinski would be a star of the first magnitude if he had a football head. If he ever steadies down he will be a sensation He was seized with a bad attack of "rattles" at Hanover. So was who ever was responsible for Holy Cross not cutting loose and giving Dartmouth everything it had in the line of passes and trick plays in the last quarter

In the first 10 minutes of play yesterday, Fordham looked four touchdowns superior to B. C.. The milk fed boys from the Heights did well in holding the Maroon and Gold to the 20 to 0 score One of the fastest, fiercest games of the year will be seen when Fordham and Holy Cross throw out their battlefronts in New York next Saturday After watching both teams closely we'll tell the world it will be "anybody's game." So will Fordham vs. N. Y U

That's a hard Fordham pair to match, Jimmie Murphy of Biddeford and Jackie Fisher of Everett . Try as they might yesterday B. C. couldn't keep that pair covered . If it wasn one of 'em it was the other and generally it was both . . . The Composing Room was rooting solidly for B. C. . . We don't blame 'em. Not with Modzeleski, Zapustas, Bonitski, Donowski, Fachcovic, Syzmanski, Uzdavinis and Szeszkiwski playing for Fordham . . . The gang didn't know that Ralph Gilroy was announcing the Fordham lineup. They thought he was sneezing . .

JACK FISHER

Speaking of next Saturday what a week-end! Harvard vs. Army, Holy Cross vs. Fordham, Yale vs. Chicago, Dartmouth vs. Columbia, Cornell vs. Princeton. Then there's B. C. vs. Villanova, B. U. vs. Geneva Brown vs. Tufts, Penn vs. Lehigh, Navy vs. Delaware, Colby vs. Vermont, Amherst-Worcester, Bates-Rhode Island, Bowdoin-Wesleyan, Maine-New Hampshire, Springfield Lebanon Valley, Lowell Textile-Long Island, Norwich-Mass. Aggies and a flock of others.

That Harvard Army duel should be a classic. We lean to the Army. It got it's baptism of fire against Michigan State and came through with flying colors. Bates and New Hampshire scarcely enabled John Harvard to work up a sweat. John Harvard will have to "sweat" next Saturday

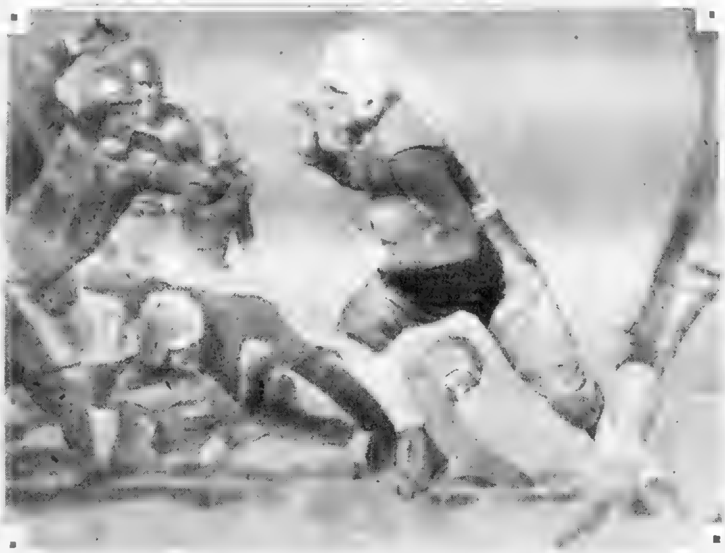
If Ernie Schaaf boxes Young Stribling in Madison Square Garden, New York, it will not be until after the Wrentham Dynamite meets Jack Dorval for the Xmas Basket Fund here in the Boston Garden on November 13 . . . Johnny Buckley gave his word that Ernie would not fight anyone before taking on Dorval here . . . Dan Carroll says no one will care where Schaaf fights after the Dorval battle . Carroll thinks it will be Dorval the matchmakers will be trying to lasso after November 13 . . . You can't jail Dan for thinking.

ERNIE SCHAAF

B. C. is about the only college in "major league" football ranks which does not have a training table. The best B. C. does is to stuff 'em up with milk after every game . . . Tony Siano, former Fordham captain and one of the greatest centers that ever played football, is taking a pre-med course at University Heights . . . Mine Host, Jim O'Connell of the Hotel Rogers, Lebanon, the H. C. headquarters for the Dartmouth game, told me the Holy Cross boys were the best behaved of any of the college aggregations the famous New Hampshire hostelry has housed . . . But you should have heard what the auto load of H. C. boys said when they ran over the skunk on the road to Keene !!!

That auto load from Holy Cross,
Mister Skunk certainly tossed for a loss
At the very first smell,
They said words we daren't tell,
And junked their auto for a hose!

A HOLE THEY DUG FOR MURPHY!



And look at the way the Fordham captain is heading through! There was no stopping JIM MURPHY and Jackie Fisher at Fenway, yesterday. The Maroon line tore hunks out of the B. C. front for Murphy to slice through. When they weren't slicing through the line Jimmie and Jackie were alternating on the sending and receiving ends of forward passes. Here you see JIM MURPHY tearing off one of the big gains he made against the Eagles.

Boston Kitten Proves Tiger

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

[illegible]

It was Sharkey's book from cover to cover. Carnera was sent into the ring to toy the Boston kitten that [illegible] up to a tiger. All we can say about Carnera's efforts is that you can't put the five-year plan into effect in 15 rounds.

But Primo stuck it out and proved that a good little poke is better than a good big miss.

Johnny Buckley, manager of Sharkey, stated this morning that [illegible] will concentrate his fire on Champion Max Schmeling. Buckley will confer with Jimmy Johnston, who becomes matchmaker of the N. Farley stated that he personally was glad the fight went on as a decision in the fourth frame would have been unsatisfactory and by continuing through the full 15 rounds Sharkey had an opportunity to demonstrate that he is the best heavyweight in the world

Fordham had too much stuff for the inexperienced Eagles Jack Fisher the former Everett star [illegible] necessary

Early in the game, Fisher discovered that the spacing of the six-man B. C. line was a setup for his running plays, and time and again he called upon Capt Jim Murphy and Jack Janis to knife through the Eagles' line Also, he saw that some of the Boston College linesmen were "tunneling" and sent his backs over the top.

The B C. ends were turning opponents inside, but they were not charging in fast enough to be of any [illegible] yards which against a smoother [illegible] been impossible.

WORD AND PICTURE STORY OF SHARKEY WIN

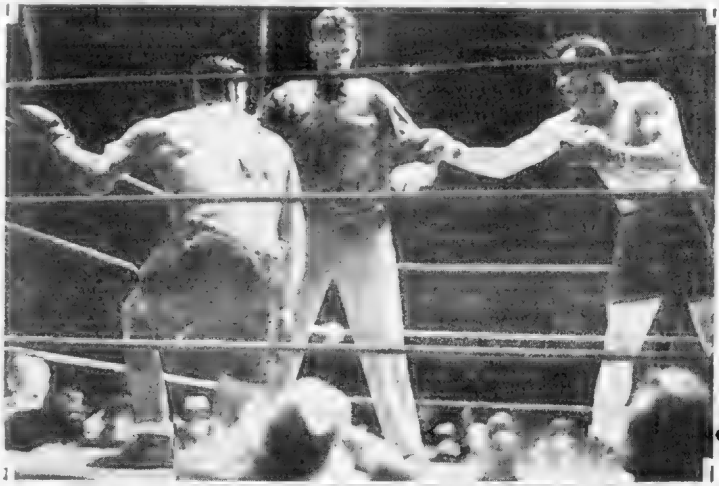
A [illegible] left to the chin which Jack Sharkey swung in the fourth round sent Primo Carnera, giant Italian heavyweight, thudding to the canvas like a side of beef tossed from a fast freight. While the birds were singing in Carnera's ears, Referee Gunboat Smith reached the count of six. Then, with an effort, Carnera lifted himself groggily on the ropes. Like a flash, Sharkey leaped at the half prostrate foe, and, without being hit, Carnera fell again to the canvas, getting up just before the referee pronounced the fatal "ten."

All photos by International Newsreel



Ignorance of ring rules on the part of Referee Smith cost Sharkey a knockout victory over Carnera at Ebbets Field last night. When a fighter goes down for count twice after being hit only once, his opponent is entitled to victory by a technical knockout. Carnera is shown trying to stand up while Sharkey comes tearing back to wrap him up. A wild gesture from Carnera's corner warned the giant to drop again, which he did. Those three extra seconds gave Carnera a chance to hang on and eventually weather the entire 15 rounds. It was Sharkey's fight all the way after the fourth.

Jack Sharkey Tells How He Chopped Down Carnera

By JACK SHARKEY

[illegible] Ebbets Field.

[illegible] that I first attracted attention when I licked Harry Wills in 15 rounds. Five years later I got a thrill out of crushing another ring giant.

The newspaper boys are [illegible] talking about that fourth round. That was the session in which I dropped Carnera with a savage left hook to the chin. The Italian giant got up at the count of six. I was on top of him at [illegible] and prepared to hit him again when he dropped to the canvas [illegible] a blow.

[illegible] was confused and [illegible] what to do. Under [illegible] of beating Carnera [illegible] getting [illegible] started for my corner [illegible] the bout was over. Johnny [illegible] stopped me as I was about [illegible] the ring. Carnera had not [illegible] and got up at the [illegible]

I got a thrill out of winning, but I wish to praise Carnera for [illegible] and he made against me. [illegible] one of the most courageous heavyweights I have ever met. Give him another year of experience and he will be even a greater heavyweight than he is now.

It is my intention to keep active in the ring. Of course I would prefer meeting Schmeling again as I know I can lick him. Max, however, has refused to go through with the return contest he promised me after our last bout.

If Schmeling continues to sulk in his tent I shall take on Tommy Loughran, Mickey Walker and some of the other American heavyweights who are not afraid to [illegible]

SMALL COLLEGE TEAMS ADVANCE, SAYS CASEY

SOUTHERN ELEVENS MAKE BIG STRIDES; GEORGIA, VANDERBILT STRONG

By Eddie Casey

Harvard Head Coach and All-American Star

Eddie Casey will write an exclusive article for the Boston Evening American each Monday, Wednesday and Friday

Probably in no section of the country has intercollegiate football made more rapid strides in recent years than in the South, and it is not surprising that the section below the Mason and Dixon line has another group of potentially powerful teams this season.

Three of the great victories of the latest activity along the nation's gridiron front have been chalked up to southern teams. Certainly the scores, Vanderbilt 26, Ohio State 21, Georgia 26, Yale 7, and Maryland 6, Navy 0 tell a story in themselves and speak volumes for the power packed in the stronger of the southern football teams.

These triumphs, of course, are not new to the South. For several years the southern colleges have prided themselves, and with good reason, on their football teams, but I know that in many sections the true value of that southern prowess was not appreciated until a year ago. Then Georgia defeated Yale, 18-14, and later in the season defeated New York University, 7-6. Vanderbilt beat Minnesota, 33-7, a week before Minnesota tied Stanford.

Again, Alabama smashed the Pacific Coast champions, Washington State, 24-0, in the Pasadena Bowl, and that great Tulane team, though beaten in an early season game by Northwestern by two touchdowns, did not lose another game, and at the season's end beat Georgia, 25-0.

Yale, Princeton, Navy Are Upset

The South on Saturday saw representative teams continue their intersectional triumphs, and this on a day of astounding results. Yale, Princeton and Navy were beaten in their second starts in the East, and here was another chapter in evidence that the balance of football power is no longer confined to the larger colleges, a fact which has been demonstrated Saturday after Saturday in the last 10 years.

Football followers, and they include coaches who would a game picking go, still are inclined to figure that the larger college generally has the edge, or that a normal big college team can prevail over a better than normal smaller college team. Teams that have been traditionally good cannot be counted upon to get good results any more. They must have a good, strong team to win games. Again we all are inclined to overlook the fact that teams which 10 years ago might have brought about an upset by a win over Yale, Princeton and Navy now are definitely placed among the football powers and have strong teams year after year.

Georgia capitalized its scoring chances against Yale, turned an Eli forward pass into a Georgia touchdown, and then sent a substitute back named Key away on a 75 yard run for a touchdown to establish a 13-0 lead at the half. That is a tremendous advantage entering a second half. Eventually Georgia won, 26-7. I still cannot believe that Yale is not to have a stronger team than a year ago. A squad of good material, which is intelligently coached, is bound to get somewhere.

Yale, of course, has been trying to master a new offense, as are Princeton and Navy, and that takes time. Harvard will be up against the same proposition this week-end when it plays Army at West Point, and it is only natural that the Harvard coaches are fearful of a severe case of mental indigestion in that first big game.

Holy Cross in Great Fight With Green

The great fight made by Holy Cross against Dartmouth was one of the features of the last week-end, a beautiful 83 yard run by Bill McCall to the Holy Cross two-yard line on the opening kickoff settling the game, which resulted in a 14-7 Dartmouth victory. That game certainly did much for Dartmouth, and for Holy Cross, too, which a year ago gave one of the finest exhibitions of football I have ever seen when it defeated Harvard, 28 to 0.

It was most unfortunate that Notre Dame and Northwestern could not have played on a dry field. Any game played in the rain is not a fair test of football strength. Undoubtedly two of the best teams of the country were meeting on that wet gridiron at Soldiers Field, Chicago, but their actual strength now must remain uncatalogued until Notre Dame meets a great Pittsburgh team on October 24 and Northwestern plays Illinois on October 31.

At this point in the season several teams already stand out. St. Mary's on the Coast, Army, Pittsburgh and New York University in the East, Georgia and Vanderbilt in the South and Rice in the Southwest. The victory which Rice scored over Texas University was one of the big surprises of the week-end and entirely unexpected. The complete way in which Rice dominated that game is hard to understand unless it is an exceptional team.

Army was impressive in its win over Michigan State. Coach Sasse has a scoring team, which also was subjected to a defensive test on Saturday and stood up under it. Unquestionably one of the best Army teams in recent years should take the field against Harvard on Saturday. In addition to the game at West Point there will be other important contests throughout the country.

Yale goes to Chicago, and may expect a hard game from a team which Michigan could beat only by a touchdown. Other games pair Cornell and Princeton, Dartmouth and Columbia, Fordham and Holy Cross, New York University and Rutgers, Syracuse and Florida, Tennessee and Alabama, Texas and Oklahoma, Tulane and Vanderbilt, Southern California and Oregon, Stanford and Oregon Aggies, Notre Dame and Drake, Wisconsin and Purdue, Michigan and Ohio State.

The South naturally will be highly excited over the Alabama-Tennessee game, which Alabama won a year ago, 18-6, administering the only defeat Tennessee suffered all season. And judging by what Georgia, Maryland and Vanderbilt showed last week end it should be one of the important games of the day. The South has some football teams that are football teams.

Another exclusive article on football by Eddie Casey will appear in the sports pages of the Boston Evening American tomorrow.

Fordham outclassed Boston College in every department yesterday at Fenway Park and was fully entitled to victory.

Coach Joe McKenney has done a fine job with the available material at the Heights, but he cannot expect to mould together a machine fit to cope with such an aggregation as Major Cavanaugh has at Fordham.

NOW is the Time to TRADE

Get the Biggest Allowance for Your Present Car on a New HUDSON 8 or ESSEX Super-Six TODAY

GET A NEW CAR AND BE READY FOR WINTER

You'll Never Get Back the Money You Spend Fixing up your Present Car. It's worth more NOW!

Generous Allowances on All Makes

During 1931 there has been such a steadily increasing demand for previous Hudson and Essex models—and the cost of reconditioning such cars has been so low due to their rugged construction and built-in long life—that these models are now bringing higher prices. Consequently, these factors and our big Fall Appraisal Campaign permit us to give extraordinary, liberal trade-in allowances. For example—

Hudson

1928—We are allowing as high as $500 on some models of the 1928 series.

1929—Now in big demand. Our trade-in price as high as $700 on some body types.

1930—Some cars in the 1930 series are being taken in as high as $900.

Essex

1928—On many cars we are giving as high as $250 on trade-ins.

1929—Our price is as high as $450 allowance on a Hudson or Essex.

1930—Trade-in allowance as high as $600 on some body styles.

Equally liberal allowances on other makes

Add up what you will have to spend for new tires, battery work, valve grinding, motor overhauling and the many other repairs you will have to make to your present car to put it in shape for winter driving. Then take a good look at the big allowances we are making during our Fall Appraisal Campaign. Let that be your most convincing proof that NOW—right today—is the time to trade in your present car on a new Hudson Eight or Essex Super-Six that you know will serve you unfailingly and economically this winter and for winters to come.

Your present car is worth more right now, even in its present shape than it ever will be again. Next spring, even with the money you put into it this Fall, it will be worth perhaps several hundred dollars less than today. Even a week will lower its value. So, again we repeat—NOW is the time to TRADE!

The list at the left shows an example of the generous allowances we are making. But your car, regardless of make or model you own, will also command a high allowance. We just haven't room to list them all here. Come in to-day and let us appraise your car. Let us show you how easily you can get a 1931 model right off the showroom floor at a big saving. This offer includes the New De Luxe body styles, just introduced this Fall, as well as standard models. And at slight additional cost you can have Selective Free Wheeling and the Hudson-Essex "Startix" which automatically starts your motor and restarts it anytime, anywhere should it stall for any reason.

HUDSON

ESSEX

Don't put it off. This offer is limited. Naturally, we can not continue to make allowances like these very long. You may be too late if you delay. Don't let another day go by without seeing these great cars and learning how inexpensive it is to have reliable transportation this winter.

SPECTATOR

Says:

Regardless of whether the stock market continues on its straight line path toward higher levels in the new week, or devotes most of the period to digesting its recent gains, or even slips back a bit, there seems to be indisputable evidence that the long downtrend has been finally broken.

Reasons for Change

1. National [illegible] development [illegible] likely to appear [illegible]

2. [illegible] is definitely on the way [illegible] no one knows how long it will be delayed.

MARKET QUIET AS LEADERS SELL LOWER

New York, Oct. 13—Stocks reacted in Wall st. today but the decline was accopanied by a marked contraction in volume. Many prominent issues, however, dipped 2 to 3 points or more.

U. S. Steel, General Electric, Woolworth, Borden and American Can dropped a couple of points, while American Telephone, Allied Chemical, Case, Consolidated Gas, Dupont, Coca Cola, New York Central and New Haven were off more than 3.

1,500,000-SHARE DAY.

Western Union, Auburn and Atchison yielded half a dozen points. Sales totaled around 1,500,000 shares.

Rails were the heaviest group, with reported "inside" expectations that the I. C. C. decision on freight rates would be less favorable than many have expected.

Recessions of a point or more appeared throughout the list. Stock was not offered in large volume, and sales largely were regarded as profit-taking on last week's sweeping advance.

Developments in political affairs in England and Germany, and last week's premature expectations of a week-end announcement of the Interstate Commerce Commission's decision on the petition for a 15 per cent increase in freight rates, left Wall st. somewhat sobered.

STABILIZING INFLUENCE

The progress made in setting up the billion dollar credit corporation still was distinctly a stabilizing influence.

The firmer money market which has followed last week's increase in the New York rediscount rate was reflected in a sag in the high grade, low yield bonds which normally respond to changes in trends in the money market.

Call loans renewed at 2 per cent for the first time since April, after rising from 1½ per cent to 2 during Friday's session. Bankers' accept rates were again advanced.

Suspension of the old bond house of Kountze Bros. was without notable influence. This firm, while one of the older members of the stock exchange, has been less active in recent years.

Cotton was a bright spot in the day's markets, rising briskly in response to announcement that Southern bankers and the Farm Board were aligned behind a plan to keep some 7,000,000 bales off the market until next July 31.

—STATE ST.—

Hears:

That plans to carry prices forward under the leadership of "Big Steel" were postponed on adverse news developments. Foreign situation, as reflected by the major European exchanges, is somewhat clouded. Domestic situation, irritated by isolated cases of distress, naturally shows some hesitancy. Traders are protected by close stops.

Steel

The calamity howlers who were sure little, if any, seasonal improvement would be witnessed are amazed at the manner in which unfilled steel tonnage held up during a period of constantly falling markets. On the other hand those who looked for late seasonal improvement are greatly cheered and feel their optimism will be fully justified. Some inquiry is noted from the railroads. At the same time motor companies must soon fill requirements necessary to the introduction of new models.

For the first time since early summer leading indices of business activity show an increase over the preceding week. In most cases the upturns are of substantial proportions.

Cord

A low priced equity which appears to be attractive for the long pull is Cord, currently selling under $6, on the New York curb. Besides being a manufacturer the company is the largest holder of Auburn Motor. Last spring when the latter was enjoying a sensational move there were rumors of an exchange of shares. Reliable quarters think there was, and is, some substance to these reports. They contend it is better to accumulate now than wait for additional rumors which are likely to come at the top of the next move.

Now that market psychology has been renovated, some better reports from business will help matters. Third quarter statements, incidentally, represent a period before the introduction of constructive measures.

Boardroom Briefs

Big Boston banks are extremely liquid, with deposit coverage better than 60 cents on the dollar in cash in many instances. . . Attempts to pass frozen loans on to the Federal Reserve will be fought by leading senators, who have the backing of responsible bankers . . . Standard Statistics feels the long bear market is ended . . . American Car & Foundry is said to be in line for a further dividend cut.

Silver is being forced into the limelight. Editorial writers of note, senators with a better than average financial knowledge and leading economists are advocating rehabilitation.

Odd-Lot Buying Good in Wall Street Market

New York, Oct. 10—Despite all that has been said about the throwing overboard of good stocks by the needy American investor, the big brokerage houses with hardly an exception report a steady stream of investment buying of odd-lots of dividend paying stock.

The out going mail of the "wire houses," even during the record-breaking drop in prices last month, contained thousands of registered packages of stock certificates made out to individuals all over the country.

Corporation reports issued since June 1 bear out this phase of the situation. U. S. Steel, Pennsylvania Railroad and other well known corporations have more stockholders on their lists today than at any previous period. Dividend checks are going to "new names" at an ever-increasing rate.

There are two reasons for this. First, the small bulls in favorite stocks, stubbornly refusing to permit the wiping out of their margins, paid the balance of their indebtedness o the brokers and ordered he stocks transferred to their own account; second, ignoring the slump in business, seen as ending, investors believe their favorite stocks to be well worth current selling prices. They have been "evening up" in anticipation of a better day.

U. S. STEEL

F. L. L., Allston—An opinion on U. S. Steel would be welcomed—something candid, please.

Ans.—We are always candid. It is quite natural that in a booming stock market session steel common should participate vigorously in such an advance. The stock is recognized "pivotal" issue, which characterization is chiefly vital to speculators. The investor is more interested in fundamentals of a stock. In this respect, one of the most frequently asked questions in Wall st. currently is: "At present prices is steel common a bargain?"

Certainly, from current conditions, the stock is selling at an unduly high price. Earnings of 17 cents a share for the first half year were possible only by inclusion of non-recurring two period. Probably there will be satisfaction if the steel corporation shows even a modest balance on the common stock for the entire year. The reduction in wages and salaries, of course, will begin to find reflection in earnings, beginning this month.

Nevertheless, the corporation is dependent upon large-scale business activity for profits. A rate of 50 per cent of capacity marks the dividing line between profit and deficit, with reasonable price scales prevailing.

Although it is fair to assume that operations may expand somewhat in the nearby future, there is no immediate evidence of any substantial improvement. Steel common is thought likely to be among the laggards in a sustained improvement, even though it will be favored by long-pull investment demand long before it commences a major upward move.

In the meantime, the $4 dividend is still being questioned for safety, earnings are poor, and the stock is meeting only moderate buying of impressive character. The principle buying, furthermore, is taking place only a scale downward.

WON 'FAME' IN STRANGE WAYS

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 13 (AP)—Mrs. Alice Pike Barney, 70, playwright and patron of the theater who at one time was a colorful figure in Washington, dropped dead of heart disease at a concert.

She was 17 years old when she was married to Albert Clifford Barney, Banker. He died in 1914, leaving her $5,000,000. She went to Washington and established a salon that was the talk of the day.

When she was 60 she was married to Christian Hemmick, 26-year-old artist. He obtained a divorce on the grounds of desertion.

Mrs. Barney and her daughter Natalie startled Washington on several occasions. The mother executed a nude, reclining statue of the daughter and it appeared one day on the lawn of the Barney home. Police insisted that it be covered with a tarpulin until it could be removed.

Farmers Riot, Storm Jail in Cow Fight

New London, Ia., Oct. 13—The farmers rebellion agains the state cattle tuberculin test law broke out anew today when 500 cattle owners overran the jail here, smashed locks to the doors, twisted bars and finally liberated Ronald Hart, 20, son of a railway station agent.

Young Hart was accused of jeering the state troops which have been protecting the state veterinarians as they were making their tests of the various herds.

MODEL LAW AS AID TO JOBLESS

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—Model law to "provide millions for employment but not a cent for loafers" was urged today by Dr. Willford I. Fing, professor of economics at New York University.

The law proposes that state employment at low wage rates be offered to all able-bodied persons desiring it, at a suggested minimum of 30 cents an hour without food and lodging.

The law further would require all employers of 50 or more persons to subscribe to an agreed volume of employment, which he must maintain under penalty of fine.

The employer also would contribute to an unemployment reserve fund kept in his own name by the state and invested in securities legal for the state's savings banks.

Dr. Kanavel Scores Medical 'Smugness'

New York, Oct. 13—"Medicine learned from a monk to use antimony, from a Jesuit to cure ague, from a friar to cut for stone, from a postmaster to sound the Eustachian tube, and from a dairy maid to prevent smallpox."

That quotation from a medical historian, flung at the heads of all members of the American College of Surgeons by their new president, Dr. Allen B. Kanavel, caused much discussion at the college's clinical congress today.

Dr. Kanavel attacked the "smug fundamentalism" of many modern physicians and surgeons.

Cancellation Would Prove Tragic Folly

When President Hoover announced the moratorium of a year on inter-governmental debts, he assured the country that he was opposed to cancellation of the debts in words that were explicit and unqualified.

In his official statement, issued June 20th, he said: "I DO NOT APPROVE IN ANY REMOTE SENSE OF THE CANCELLATION OF THE DEBTS TO US. World confidence would not be enhanced by such action."

The country might well conclude from these words that American interests were safe, and that the widespread apprehension of secret international banking influence, selfishly exerted for cancellation, was unjustified.

But is this apprehension without justification?

The dispatches from Washington, describing the White House conference of October 6th, between the President and a group of Treasury officials, Senators and Representatives, show President Hoover distinctly veering away from the position on cancellation which he announced in June.

Says the President in his latest statement of October 7th:

"It is my purpose to discuss with him (Premier Laval of France) the question of such further arrangements as are imperative during the period of the depression in respect to inter-governmental debts."

The statement containing these words, however, seems not to have been the statement originally submitted to the conference, but a revised version after substantial deletions.

The part dealing with inter-governmental debts was of such tenor as to prompt Representative Garner to say that the conference was called apparently TO PAVE THE WAY for an extension of the moratorium.

The opposition manifested in the conference was strong enough to effect a toning down of the President's statement, and to reduce the reference to inter-governmental debts to vague and non-committal terms.

BUT THE COUNTRY WILL NOT BE DECEIVED BY WEASEL WORDS.

To cancel the debts, as ex-President Coolidge says, means giving foreign business a subsidy AT THE EXPENSE OF THE AMERICAN TAXPAYERS.

If European payments on their war debts are discontinued, the American taxpayer will have to supply the sums not paid, and at a time when his burdens from taxation are due for a big increase for other reasons.

Let the President and his advisers take warning. It is neither sound economics nor sound ethics to make an international sucker out of the United States.

Double Presidents

A novel in one of the popular monthlies circles about a President who has a double. The real one is kept locked up in the White House to solve vast economic problems. The other goes out to feed apples to horses, pat children on the head and delight people with his warm human qualities.

There is ironic truth in the idea. Can a first-rate "thinking machine" ever be a showman? Isn't it illogical—though human—to expect a man to be both?

If a statesman has to think a lot, how can he ever find time to be popular? The ancients didn't think he could, so they secluded their oldest and sagest in caves, hidden from the vulgar eye, to dispense wisdom on request. The lot of the oracle was not a happy one, for caves are apt to be damp, and when he wanted to go fishing he just couldn't.

As a way out of the predicament the novelist suggests two Presidents in the White House, one to dwell in the cold realm of brain, the other to dispense bon-mots and the glad hand.

League Court Expediency

As a friend of the League Court and an advocate of American membership, the Springfield Republican has been disillusioned, in part at least, by the Austro-German customs union decision. An editorial in the venerable Massachusetts journal said:

"It is disappointing that the decision was so close, and still more disappointing that it was obviously determined by political rather than legal considerations.

"It would be difficult to feel very enthusiastic about the World Court or very hopeful for its future, if we had to look forward to a long line of eight-to-seven decisions in which law might be subordinated to expediency or politics."

A Busy Bishop at 80

Bishop Samuel G. Babcock of the Episcopal diocese of Massachusetts, who first saw practical life from behind the counter of a small store in a Rhode Island town, has reached the ripe old age of 80. He has always maintained that a business man needs an avocation, and he chose the small town religious assemblies over which he presided. But his ardor and strong faith carried him to the post of eminence and high trust in the Episcopal denomination while his business experience has enabled him to solve many a knotty problem. The Bishop is hale and hearty. And with years of good work ahead of him, it is to be hoped.

Thunderclouds! Don't Scrap the Umbrella

New York Day by Day

He Put It Over

NEW YORK, Oct. 13—During a season when the theater was drooping toward what Wall Street calls "default levels," one actor stepped out and made record-breaking stage history. His was the most astonishing box office draw the Rialto has known in years.

The comedian turning the trick was Lou Holz, thin young dialect comic, discovered originally by Elsie Janis singing in a road house near San Francisco. He was urged to try his luck in New York and did. But outside a few revue and vaudeville engagements met with indifferent success.

In fact he met greater success dabbling in the market, running a small investment into a sizable fortune which included an uptown apartment house. Save for an occasional engagement now and then, he had about deserted the stage, when Wall Street blew up and he lost everything.

Bewildered and disheartened he went on at the Palace as a master of ceremony and it was his acute indifference and effortless fun-making that put him over. He was held and managed to find backers for a musical comedy that lasted several months.

After this show closed he went back to the Palace, again as master of ceremony, to accomplish the most extraordinary run in the history of that playhouse. For the first time the entire bill, including Holz, was retained intact for the second week.

Then, with minor changes due to prior engagements, it went into the third, fourth, and even seventh week. Thus did a hastily collected vaudeville bill become virtually a summer revue. It was Holz, with the aid of Wm. Gaxton, who kept the show together and packed the house twice daily.

His salary, starting at $4250 a week, ballooned to $6500, one of the largest ever paid at the Palace. As a result Holz becomes the most sought after actor on Broadway. But what is more impressive is the un-actory reaction of Holz to his triumph. His hat fits him still.

Another fine performer that ran Holz a close race on the Palace bill was William Gaxton. He remained all during the Holz run and two weeks afterward. And if any-one puts over a song with more contagious zip, I've never heard him. I attended one show a dozen times just to hear him sing "You Do Something to Me." Chevalier, my eye!

* * *

Incidentally, passing what was once a vaudeville haven—Proctor's Fifth avenue, likely so named because it's on lower Broadway—I found it had, like many other theaters uptown, turned to rowdy continuous burlesque and the lobby once displaying pictures of Jack Norworth and Nora Bayes, Blossom Seeley, et al, now bristles with shocking photos of startlingly nude ladies.

* * *

I am told most burlesque ladies of the moment come from the lower East Side—chiefly the Ghetto. They are usually dark skinned brunettes with bright cherry lips, although in the undressing numbers a blonde is the central figure. It is difficult work, as the shows are continuous, running from noon until midnight. Salaries range from $40 to $60 a week, with principals getting $75 to $125 top.

The comics are even rowdier than those of other days, although the comedy is still largely confined to unmerciful whanging of what Mr. Mencken calls the sitzplatz. In all the buffooney and hayloft hilarity of burlesque, however, there is something typically American—as typical, indeed, as the paw-paw or the seventh inning stretch. There is a camaraderie about the unexpected squirt of selzer in the face of a surprised innocent that makes all brothers, perhaps more so than a treaty in a mirrored hall at Versailles.

Back stage at a burlesque house a skimpily clad lady told me she was upset. She had just refused to share her dressing room with a best friend. "She has simply become," she explained, "a kleptomaniac on stealing."

* * *

There is something vigorously expressive about burlesque patois. A frizzy red-head wiggle dancer came into the wings puffing as the house roared with applause. Called back for a half dozen bows, a girl friend, passing, called: "Kid, that's selling a number! You certainly spit Ritz."

Listen, World!

When Does Love Come?

YOU FALL IN LOVE . . . then you get married.

No you don't!

You get married. Then, maybe, if you behave yourself, you fall in love.

At least, that's how Dr. Beran Wolfe has romance programmed in his article, "Romance vs. Marriage," in the September FORUM.

Elsie Robinson

Remember that summer when you and Mabel "got that way"? You always thought you "fell in love" then. But you didn't. For love, real love, can't come until AFTER MARRIAGE, according to Dr. Wolfe.

"Love isn't the beginning of marriage, the premise of domestic happiness. Love is the PRODUCT of the correct solution of that task."

Then what was that dizzy-dazzle you went through? Why'd you go mooning around, running up telephone and florist bills, acting half crazy? Wasn't that love?

No, that was just a little preliminary excitement. Nature's come-on, as it were, to induce you to settle down and start a family. And you called it love because, being born in a sentimental era, you'd been trained to think that was love.

Trained by what? By mushy movies and slushy fiction and a general social attitude of "romantic infantilism." And what may that be? That's thinking about love when you're 46 as you thought about it when you were 16. Expecting marriage to be one long succession of dandy hearts 'n' valentines, expecting your husband to prove a Prince Charming or your wife a Princess Beautiful . . . expecting you'll "live happy ever after" just because you've been burnt up over each other during one summer's vacation.

And this "romantic infantilism" is the greatest menace to American marriage, claims Dr. Wolfe. For what happens when the fairy tales don't prove true? Do we settle down and try to make a success of marriage even though the thrills have departed? Do we patiently proceed with the partnership, hoping that romance still awaits us, around the turn of the trail? No we don't. Seven times out o. ten we rush into the divorce court, and call the deal off.

And if we realized this fact at the beginning . . . if we were taught to regard marriage as a job, to select our mates for their sterling qualities, rather than for their romantic glamour . . . why then we could hope to achieve Real Love in time, no matter how prosaic our beginnings.

Sounds rather coolish, doesn't it? And yet, when you analyze it, isn't it a grand and grown-up idea? To work for love, as we'd work for any of the great blessings of life . . .

To work, out of the fever and foolishness of mere physical infatuation into the growing beauty and peace of Lasting Love? Makes our ordinary conception of romance sound sort of silly, doesn't it?

Just Folks

Punishment

"Yes," said he, "henceforth to dwell
Forever in a prison cell
Is punishment—the price men pay
For having tossed their lives away.
But I shall suffer while I live
Worse torture than the law can give.

"My gaoler will more kindly be,
As pass the long days by, to me
Than I shall be unto myself.
He'll lend me books upon his shelf
And stop to speak and pass the time
And may, perhaps, forget my crime.

"But every waking hour I know
Shall but recall the long ago,
When bird and bloom and fruit of vine,
Freedom and friends and hope were mine.
For here where iron shackles clink
The dullest mortal wakes to think.

"That's what will hurt! The day by day
Return of glories flung away;
To hear the morning songbirds' call
Ring just outside my prison wall
And—torture worse than law can give—
Despise myself and still to live!"

Elephant That Ants Killed

Small Worries Kill Us, as Ants Kill Elephants

DRIVEN MAD BY ANTS

The big picture at the top shows the most powerful animal now inhabiting the earth, except the whale. The little picture shows samples of driver ant "soldiers," among the smallest of things with which we come in contact.

There are, of course, thousands of tribes of creatures, invisible to our eyes, some of them as dangerous to human beings as the driver ants are dangerous to the huge elephant.

The driver ants, most numerous and dangerous in the Rainy Forests on the western coast of Africa, are the most terribly destructive creatures on earth, in proportion to their size.

John W. Vandercook, writing for the London Sphere, cites instance in which elephants, surrounded and surprised by hordes innumerable of these tiny creatures, have vainly sought to escape in flight.

Mr. Vandercook writes:

"The drivers, secure in their several billions, fear nothing. They have been known to kill elephants. An elephant, one must remember, is of all animals perhaps the least fitted to deal with a small enemy. Against a lion or a leopard it can oppose its crushing weight, the agile strength of its trunk and the great, pile-driver feet. But from a tiny driver an elephant can only flee, if possible, into deep water or, better still, to a mud wallow in some swamp. . . . However, an elephant is sometimes lamed so it cannot run. A concealed hole or a careless hunter can do that. In that case, if the drivers come, the huge beast will be almost surely doomed. The elephant's instinctive weapon against them is its trunk—and the trunk of an elephant is so sensitive a pin-prick will produce acute pain. One can imagine then the effect of a thousand biting drivers swarming in that delicate tube. Others will cover the enormous writhing carcass like a flood of oil. The eyes will quickly be vulnerable against the drivers' mandibles, even the most calloused parts of the hide cannot last long. Natives say these ants can clean an elephant to white, smooth bone in less than three days."

Entirely carnivorous, cleaning up all flesh in their path, the ants travel ceaselessly, in long regiments, miles in length, protected by the leafage of the heavy forest.

The driver ants cannot endure sunlight, "the direct rays of the African sun will kill a driver ant in two minutes." It is important to realize the power of sunlight in destroying insect and especially germ life.

THE DRIVER ANT SOLDIERS

The sunlight that kills insects and the germs with its powerful actinic rays, stimulates and strengthens the human blood stream, when exposure to sunlight is of moderate duration, the HEAD ALWAYS PROTECTED.

It is criminal folly to expose the head in brilliant sunshine for any length of time. This should be remembered by those that go without hats.

It is impossible to estimate the numbers of driver ants that travel their destructive paths in Africa. They have been known to come upon a man asleep, leaving nothing of him but white bones and the clothing on them.

One of the marching columns of the driver ants took sixteen days in which to pass a given point.

On either side of the marching column the "ant soldiers" shown in the little picture, march as a protecting guard. These soldiers, with their fierce fighting machinery, drive off enemies and begin the attack. Better able than their "worker" brothers to endure sunlight, they form with their bodies tunnels through which the working ants travel when it becomes necessary to cross a sunlit space.

African natives fear the driver ants more than they fear lions or poisonous reptiles. The fiercest animals, most poisonous snakes, fear the ants as the natives do.

However, natives that have knowledge in advance of the approaching ant army, welcome its arrival and gladly arrange for it to pass through their houses.

They themselves hide until the ants have gone. After the visit the houses are absolutely clean, all vermin removed, rats, mice, insects of every sort exterminated.

It seems strange that a tiny ant, less than half an inch in length, can drive an elephant insane with pain and fear.

Here in North America where the driver ants are unknown, we have another microscopic enemy, our "small worries," which drive us to despair as the savage ants drive the elephant.

And as the elephant cannot cope with the ants, so we cannot escape our worries.

Strangest of all, the driver ants are absolutely blind. What guides them on their savage marauding trips?
